Standing Room Only!

We're Outstanding!

R-R-R-Ring! R-R-R-Ring! The bell? No. That wasn't the bell; it was the phone. I answered the phone and said hello. "What?" I asked, "You heard about Standing Room Only! What was it you asked? Well, it was the focus of our year," I replied. "We are Standing Room Only because school enrollment had increased by the hundreds. This increase led to a greater amount of enthusiasm and crowds. No matter where we went, whether standing in a lunch line, an admission line for a game, or trying to get to a locker or to class, we met friendly outgoing, new people. The Standing Room Only crowds meant more spirit, as well as more fun, clubs, and sports. Talent, variety, friends — all were in excess because we were Standing Room Only!" "I feel that since we have more students in the school then more students can show school spirit," Ernie England stated.

The locker area crowds are jam-packed. Garry James, Tim Allison, and Amelia Armendariz enthusiastically work their way to their lockers.

Crowds usually cause confusion, but these students know where they are headed. Jody Everett, Crystal Jones, Duane Dunmire, Jenny Heath, Jonathn Wright, and John Hickey prepare to go to homeroom.

Well, I don't know if I was even supposed to sign this but Jody had it and well. ya know - I got it - so I took it upon myself to sign it Kay! 😊 Lets see - where do I start. I must say that I never would have made it through Study Hall w/ out you! Plus you needed someone to keep you in line. (Ha) Thankx for all the laughs. You always seem to know how to put a smile on my face! You make me laugh at just the right time. You'll never know how much I needed that - Thankx 😊 And you're one of the only people who can beat me in a cutdown war! You've also made me realize a lot of things about myself & whether or not you even know, you did it - It is very much appreciated. You're a real special guy Gregory Share (that's a nice middle name)! You're also quite nice looking - nice legs too! And hey Greg about that note - go ahead and throw it away. If I had everything to do over again I wouldn't change anything, well... maybe that night we got to my house late and my dad was up! (sorry), I had a lot of fun w/ you. You are very unpredictable which is good and your not as tuff as you look either! 😊

Well Greg, I wish you the best of luck in college! w/ soccer! When you play professional ball send me a few tickets!! And don't forget about all the little <sup>small</sup> people back in Stafford. Don't be afraid to drop by sometime either - hey who knows I might even let you come in! 😊 Oh - in November you have to come and see Clyde, alright - I'll prove to you I'm not crazy!! or goofy or whatever else you said. Don't forget all -

The Way We Were

The School term began later than usual this year. On September 8, the homeroom bell rang at 7:55 a.m. Many questions were asked, and by the end of the week, most knew the answers. Over the next week, everyone had an idea of the styles this year and where to go on the weekends. From short skirts to sweaters, football games to parties, most changed their lives from spending six hours on the beach to spending six hours at their desks. Everyone arrived at school with ideas, ambitions, and new clothes. Everyone talked about what they did the weekend before.

The social lives of some of our students revolved around school, while others looked elsewhere for fun and action. We always enjoyed seeing our friends and being with them while we were at school. Brian Evans remarked, "The only reason I came to school was to see my friends." 5 feet 1 1/2 inches

Because we wanted to have some type of life after high school, we tried to do our best in the classes we were taking. Kim Perry hinted that her favorite class was a vocational class and Allen Durgin remarked that he liked Drama best.

The number of students in our school increased and our school life was even better. We were alive. We were the Wolverines.

And of course, the boat and Jessicas (although I don't remember all of that) Thanks for taking care of me. And hey I'll beat you at Scrabble! basketball any day of the week! Listen Greg, I could never write all that I would like to say and even though things didn't work out I'm glad I took the chance!!! The important part is that we came out friends - good friends are hard to come by and you're one of the best! I hope I never lose your friendship - It's very important to me! And hey - I don't really think you're a pud or a moron either Strange - Well yes! But that's OK Strange is good! And Gonzo is adorable Greg - It wasn't an insult :) Oh yea I almost forgot. You have to go skiing with me and Mike West over the winter. (I'll teach you how to ski - maybe if you're good?)

I love you Greg Jackson? Lat-Latny Brown '89

Stand Tall

In The Name Of Spirit

"We're number o-n-e in s-p-i-r-i-t." The chant rang throughout the stands during a football game. The screams were of joy or perhaps, desperation, but nonetheless, the crowd continued to scream encouragement.

North Stafford has always had something to cheer about. According to senior Erin McCool, "School spirit didn't stop with just supporting the football team. People supported other athletic teams as well as academic ones." School spirit has made North Stafford unique. We have built an image of a school with athletic leaders as well as academic leaders. Junior Josh Parish expressed, "It's great we have everything from Battle of the Brains to the Golf team." Numbers have never made the records; the individuals have. For everyone involved effort was the undeniable element.

So, once again in the spring of 1988, we will turn our backs on the doors of North Stafford. Some of us will return, others will move on, but no matter where we go, we will still hear the spirit and the echoes of the WOLVERINES!

Geoffrey Hannon, Lennard Tolson, and Trey Edwards break through the sign with enthusiasm. What a way to start a game.

The senior class outdid themselves at the first pep rally with creative signs. The freshman football team looks on with admiration.

Patrick Riley, Shelly Smith, Ernie England, Kirsten Hutton, Rhonda Wilson, Lisa Vaughan, Anthony Riley, and Christine Hudson are all gazing at their masterpiece. These seniors and many more are responsible for the senior float.

Michelle Beer and Denise Hayes are showing that the Wolverines are number one. These two girls were attending the first home football game.

Standing Around

... before the first; after the last ...

Every day, students filled the locker area. They squeezed through small openings to get to a bottom locker, or frustratingly looked for friends. Others stood around talking about that new guy or the car they wanted to get. Some found shelter from the mass hysteria of the locker area at the library where they hurriedly did the last night's forgotten homework. Others talked about who was going with who and you-know-who's new love. Then came the announcement over the loudspeaker about the SADD meeting for later that morning. It was the start of a typical day at North Stafford.

Hectic mornings consisted of studying in the cafeteria, meeting with club members, and early research in the library. Shawn McAniff declared that he often went to the library before school "to escape from the roudiness and distractions of the cafeteria to do my homework or to study."

Between classes, students socialized. News was exchanged and letters were passed (not all reached their intended destinations!)

At lunch, students talked to friends and occasionally, ate lunch. Seniors piled up in the Senior Court and talked about Friday night's upcoming party. Every so often you would hear the clamor of a dropped lunch tray followed by an upstanding applause. When asked what she did at lunch to pass the time, Marci Spencer joked, "I make a complete fool of myself!"

After school, there were many more club meetings and sports' practices. Students often yelled through the hallways, "Could you give me a ride home?" Others had to wait around for their rides. As you walked through the hallways at the end of the day, you could often hear the echo of the Cheerleaders' chant, "WOLVERINES, WOLVERINES ..."

A group of students study quietly in the library one morning. Rhonda Wilson takes a moment to smile pretty for the camera.

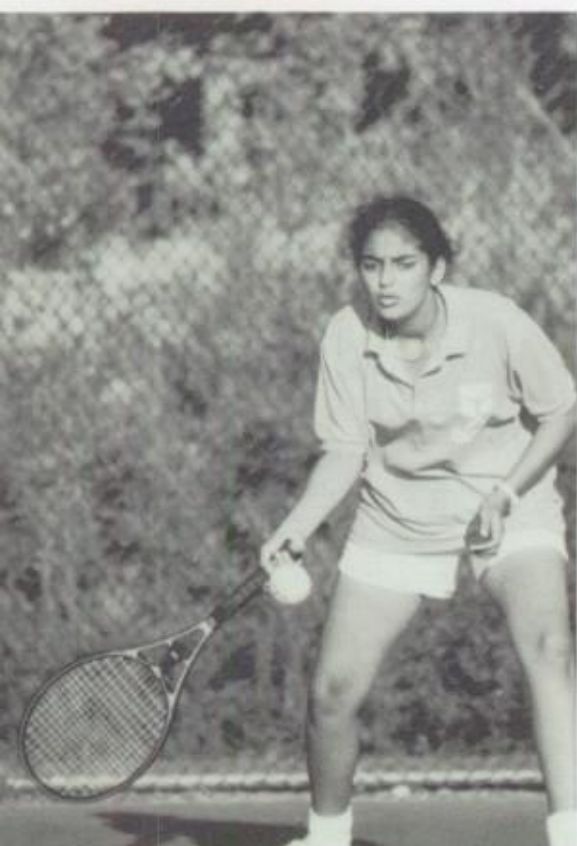

Because second lunch is so crowded, Michelle Liedel, Maria Gowallis, Charles Crawmer, Jolie Menear, Cathy Morrison, Chris Ducey, and some friends choose to sit on the floor to eat lunch.

Chuku Vashi spends this afternoon practicing for an important tennis match.

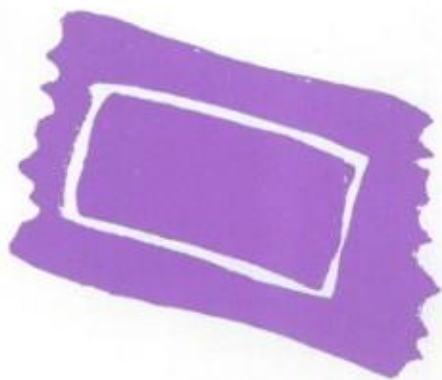

Wendy Harris, Andrea Turner, and Bonnie Seers give each other comfort, for the day is not yet over.

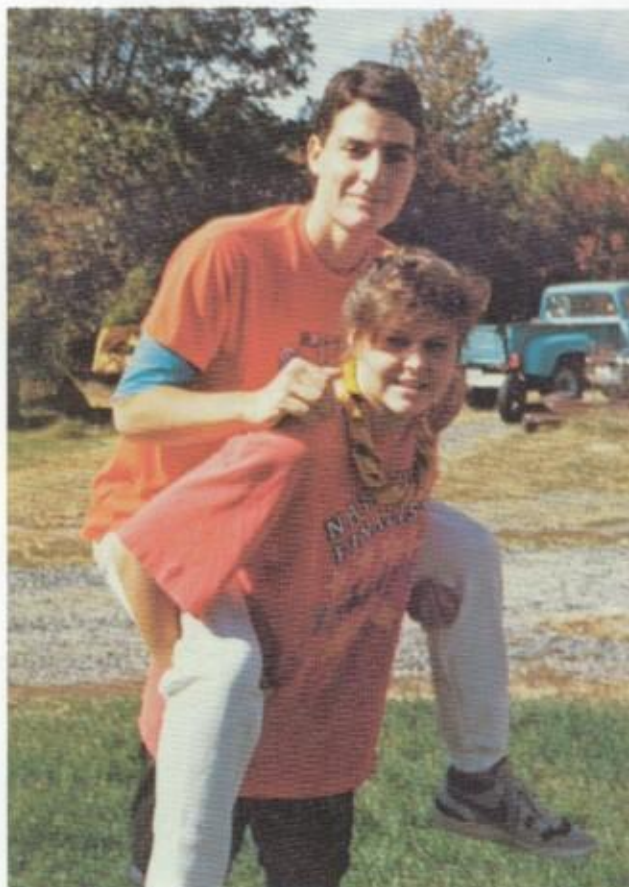

Jim Parks and Sheri Braxton seem overjoyed that the day is almost over.

Justin Clark, Franki Soltz, Poppy Angland, Sheri Meador, Criste Fagen, and Cheryl Roy relax at a dance after a hard day at school.

After a hard day, Lisa Keller, Sherry Bunnell, and Candy Marbaker show that they even smile after school.

Colline Ferman, Paul Lindermuth, Jennifer Sanders, and Greg Wallmuller minds' are on the game but their eyes are you.

Dana Fleming, Darlene Monton, Felicia Hobbs, Lori Audnell, and Kerri Burpo are all bunched up to smile for you.

Friends

Why we need them!

Everyone needs friends. We need friends for many reasons. Through good and bad, true friends adhere. Those are the friends we never forget. Some friends we may never see again, but there will be those certain people that will remain with you past high school. Those are the ones that will be in a "special" place in your heart.

What does it take to be that special friend? Dana Neilsen, Kelly Cook, and Julie Fenner felt that honesty was the best policy. You should not judge people, just accept them for whom they are. You should not have to put on airs for your friends. They also wanted to note that "friends listen as well as they talk." Many people cause us to wonder if we can trust them. Sheri Fareau replied "I confide in a lot of friends." Jenny Ranken confides only in her best friend Stacey Kelly. She said "I've known her for years and she hasn't let me down yet!"

What makes friends so important? Michelle Allen confided that "friends are so important because without friends, your life would be boring, no one to talk to, have fun with, laugh, cry, tell your most inner thoughts to, you wouldn't have anyone. A friend is someone you can trust, and someone who you know will be there in good and bad." I agreed. I asked Kerri Burpo what she thought. She was addled at first, but after thinking about it, she then replied, "they make you feel special. My friends make me feel important." We all need friends! Just remember... "no man is an island." Even if one could be — who would want to be?

Rushing so they don't miss the bus, students feel relief after a long day of school.

Students gather and talk to friends about their experiences of the first day of school.

Students flock to the exit after a long first day of school.

A look of confusion and disorientation cover the faces of the freshman while at their class meeting on the third day of school.

First Few Days of School

Can you stand it!

When everyone got together at the start of school pandamonium arose. The start of school meant reuniting with old friends, a chance to compete in school sports, and to some a chance to excel academically. Doug Baggett explained his concern about the beginning of school with, "I wondered how I was going to do academically." What would I wear? Who would I know and meet from the year before, and what would my teachers be like, were all common questions among the students.

The first few days of school were a rush of confusion. David Sulentic confessed the most confusing aspect at the beginning of school for him was, "getting used to my schedule." Friends rushed about to find and meet old friends. Teachers were organizing their newly formed classes in the middle of all the confusion.

With this new school year came changes in teachers' and students' lives. Jokingly, Mrs. Farmer stated, "now I had to get up early." When Lisa Ford was asked what was the biggest change for her, she replied, "things I wanted to do had to be scheduled around school." Mr. White's main comment about the first few days of school was, "those were days definitely to be remembered."

Jenny Kenyon shows her school spirit by taking admission tickets to the first dance of the year. It was sponsored by the Pom Poms.

Stafford Celebrates!

July 4, 1976, America celebrated its two hundredth birthday. Two hundred years of freedom, and two hundred years of pride in striving to keep this freedom.

September 17, 1987 was the birthday of the document which helped make this nation great. Two hundred years ago our Constitution was born. This birth brought an end to divine right. "We the People of the United States." A small but powerful phrase, which symbolizes a government not only made for the people but by the people.

"In order to form a more perfect union . . ." This is what the convention was all about. Our founding fathers felt their present government, the Articles of Confederation, was weak and union was needed among the states. They knew in order for them to be a strong nation they needed tranquility. Defensively each state individually was helpless, but together they could be protected.

The needs of individuals was the basis of our great Constitution. Its age shows how it accounted for these needs throughout the years.

The United States Constitution was the world's first national Constitution. Since its beginning it has been an inspiration to Nations throughout the world.

Our Constitution is not perfect and has been altered several times. The writers of the Constitution knew this would happen, as times change the needs of the people change with them. Seeing this our founding fathers made the Constitution alterable.

When the fathers of our Constitution gathered two centuries ago they probably never imagined how their document would still be our nation's Constitution two hundred years later. Nor could they have imagined how much it was celebrated this year.

There were many celebrations across the nation. North Stafford even got into the praise. The drama department, headed by Fred Franklin, put on a presentation commemorating the birth, near our county's courthouse.

Happy birthday to a great Constitution! It has been a truly successful two hundred years and hope to see many many more to come!

April Oxidine, Jane Rose, Len Rowe, and Tsuling Toomer, support the Constitution calling it freedom of choice.

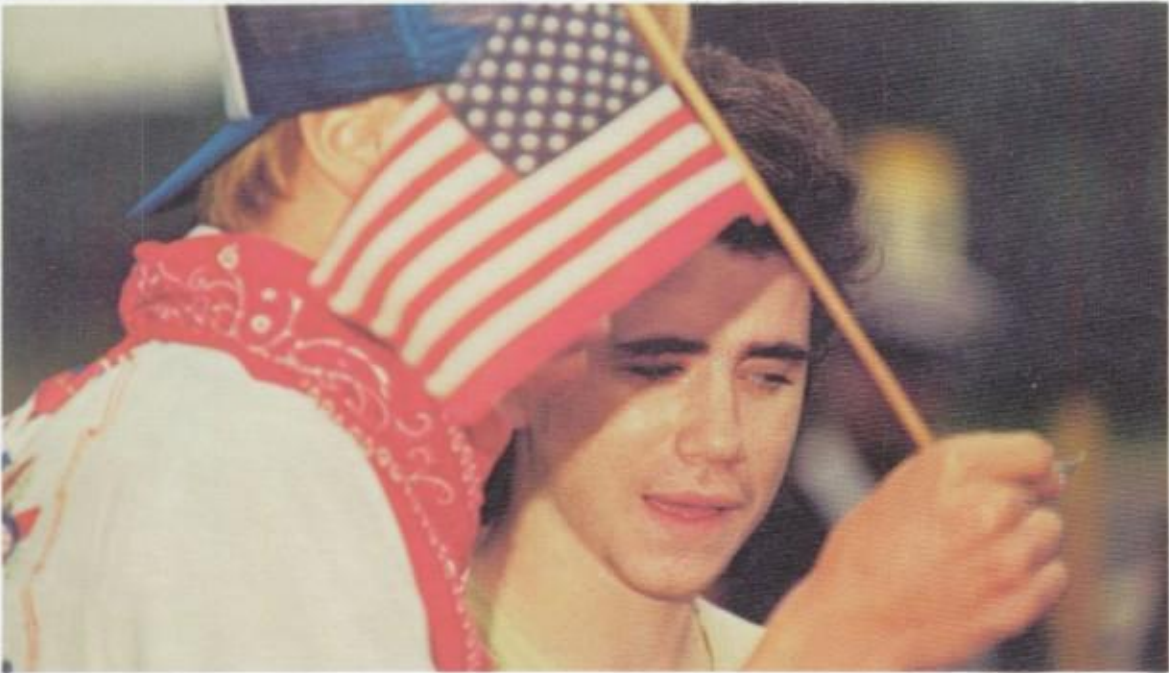

Allen Durgin shouts out to the community in the name of Independence.

Distraught widow Kristina Franco is against the constitution.

John Shaw waving America's flag.

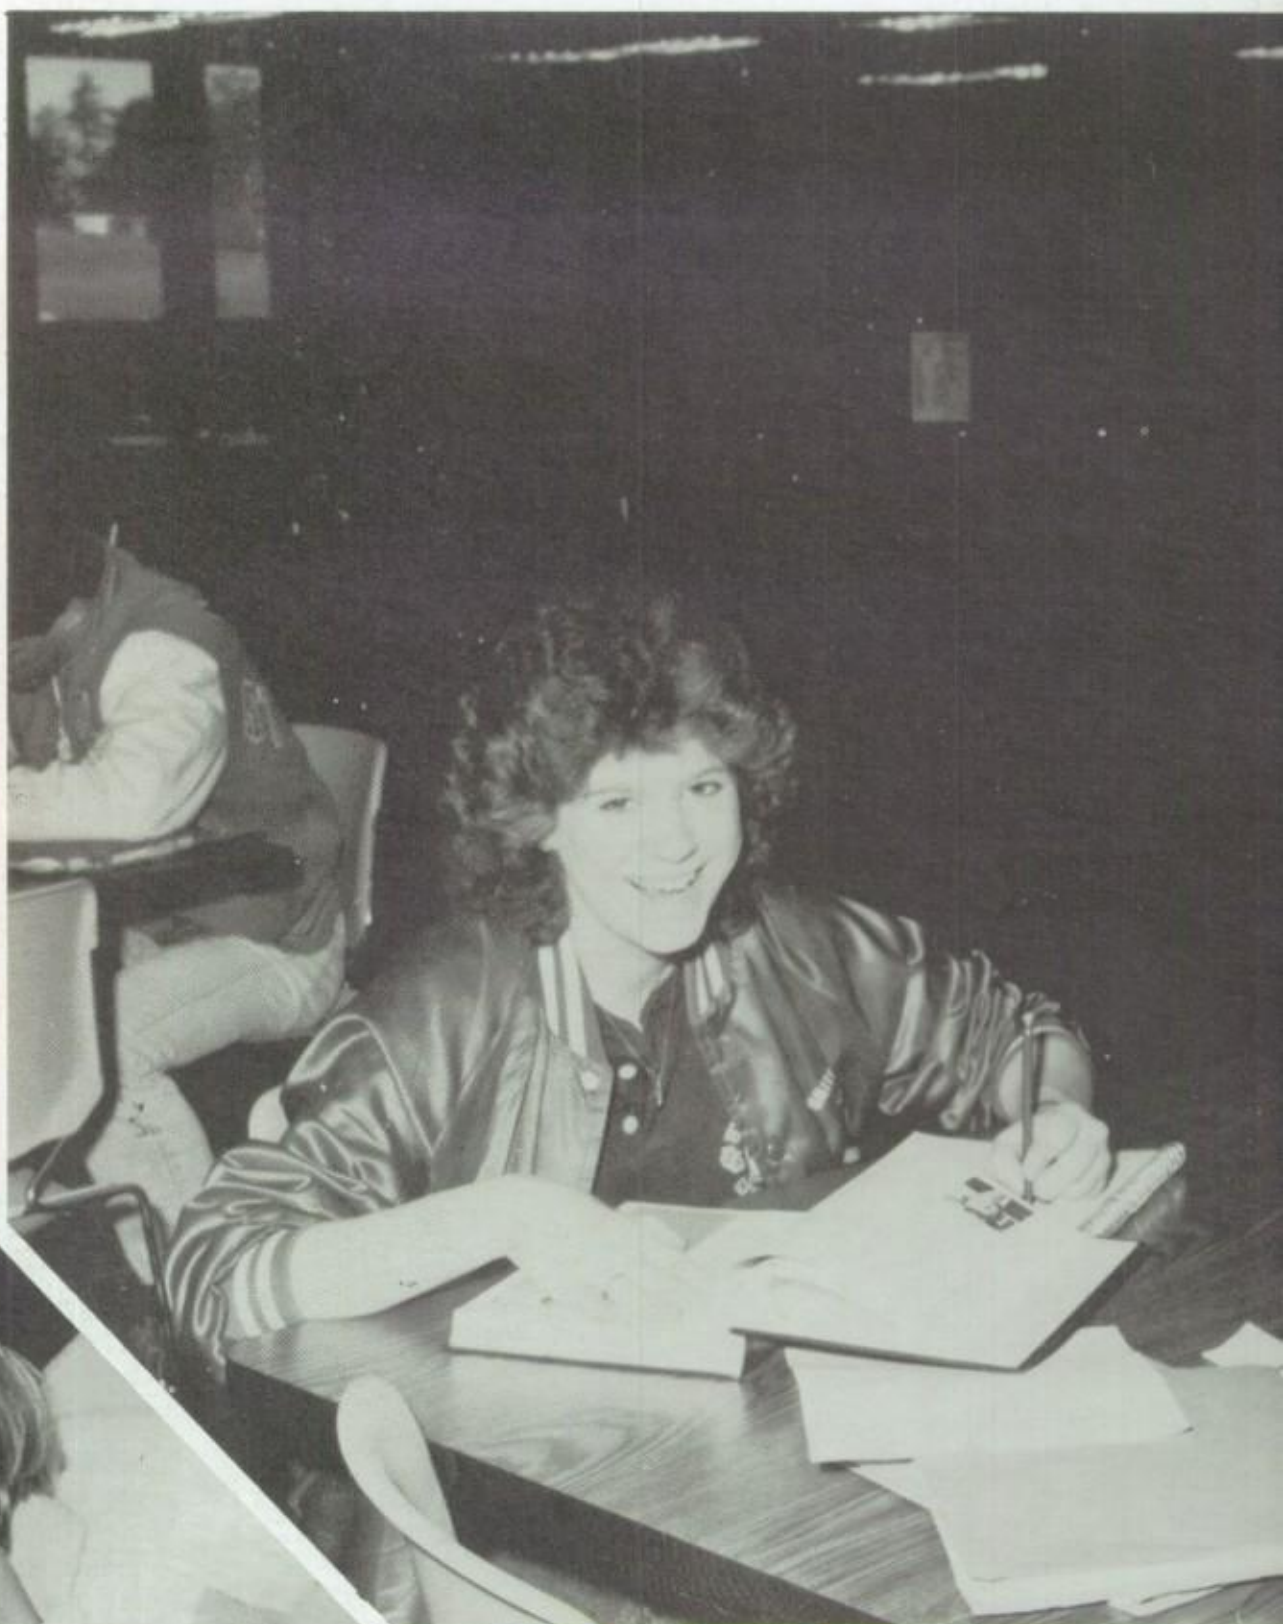

Leila Gardner, April Stafford, Beth Cloe, and Allen Durgin try to sell their Constitution.

Many students go to the library after school. Tina Kirk and Tracy Fry rush to complete last minute homework.

Mickey Howe is distracted as she ponders on how her day will go.

J.J. Burt, Hope Cook, Jennifer Sanders, and Jan Thompson take their time walking down the steps of the school parking lot. They are upset because they were late and had to park in the back row.

“The Start Of A Bad Day”

“Things didn’t always go right”

As high school students, we knew what it was like when things went wrong before school. These were everyday problems that we had experienced throughout the year. For example, the trustworthy alarm clock we relied on for years failed to wake us and we overslept. Then, we had our transportation problems. Some of us who drove to school had flat tires, ran out of gas, couldn’t find our keys, or our vehicles simply wouldn’t start. Also, there were those of us who tried to catch the bus in the morning, but missed it because we were not outside on time. A few reasons for not being prompt were: we forgot to brush our teeth, we were doing our hair, or we misplaced our books and had to look for them. Bruce Comeyne stated, “One morning I was coming to school and ran out of gas. I was only a couple of hours late.” “One evening I left my parking lights on and when I went to leave for school the next morning, my battery was dead,” laughed Jolie Menear. “I had a flat tire one morning” exclaimed Tina Weaver. Those lucky individuals who made it to school on time, but forgot to complete the last night’s homework, had problems finding friends to borrow it from. “I didn’t know I had government homework and I had to rush through it before school,” stated Thomas Whitlow. After all of this happened, we still kept our chins up and felt this was only one day and there was always tomorrow.

A flat tire is a good excuse to be late for school. Mike Badey attempts to change the tire on his car.

Bruce Comeyne loves the camera when it is aimed at him. He always has something to say.

Aim, Shoot

How We Look

Students reacted many humorous ways when they saw someone pointing a camera at them. As Laura Leiffert shouted, "they freak out." The group of Cliffy Conway, Amy Sharp, Shannon Smith, Cathy Brown and Shelly Meares all made goofy faces like sticking their tongues out or made bunny ears. Others like Ray Thomas posed and made a muscle and Wendy Houghman hid behind a locker. Sasha

Cimmermanis joked, "just stand there and be cool."

Some made comments like "...is there film in there?" Marcia McKenzie cried, "what were you doing?" A more direct comment came from Mickey Davis who boasted, "zoom in baby." The majority of the students enjoyed having their pictures taken, even though they acted very strange.

Shawn Looney reacts to the camera. He was surprised and pleased as the picture was taken.

Marcia McKenzie and Shelly Connors turn away from the camera so their picture is not taken.

Without hitting a cone Trelawney Labadie deftly turns the steering wheel. Roy Coulter looks on.

Roy Coulter is just inches away from a cone in the parallel parking exercise. Will he hit it?

Trelawrey Labadie smiles prettily, for she knows that she is in the good hands of Roy Coulter. Both are happy to be outside of the classroom.

Jr. King tests his skill on the driving range. He is driving at an incredible speed of 10 m.p.h.

Under Pressure

Driving During School

There were students in this school who did not sit around a classroom for every class period. For twenty-two days eight students got to go outside and actually "Drive!!" Of course there were rules: you had to have a learner's permit, "And a foot to press the gas pedal" replied senior Gregg Wallhumer.

These students got to drive out on the driving range and twice on Route 1. When sophomore Scott McNair was ready to go on the road he was surprised, "Coach Trant was really relaxed and nice. He didn't try to scare me in any way."

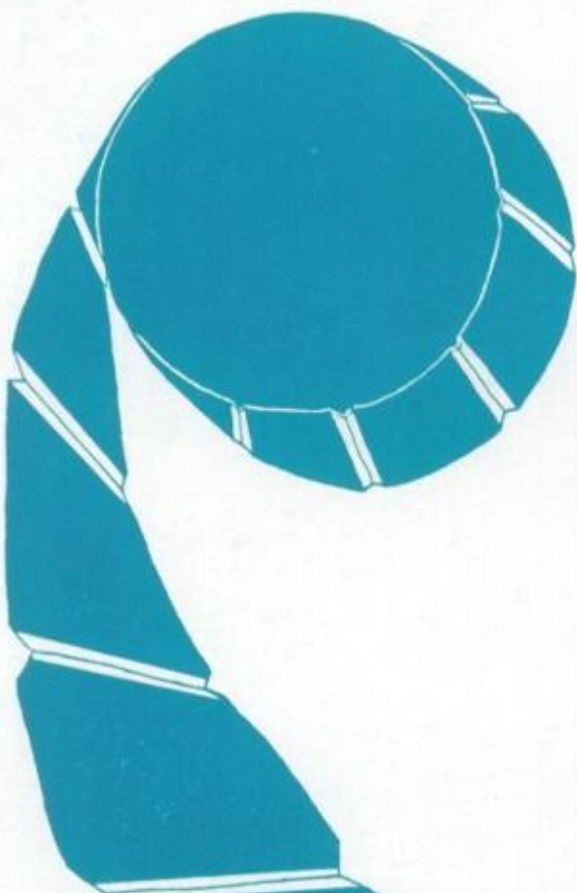

The students liked the class a lot except when they had to drive the brown truck. "The brown truck has no power steering which made it really hard to do the exercises" exclaimed junior Andrea Stephens. Another thing that the students disliked was to parallel park. Senior Mike Hobbs explained, "I hated it because after I rolled my car back and forth twenty-five times I was still about four feet away from the curb."

One thing the students all agreed on was that the class was fun. "The class was like a little break from school" stated Shawn Schmidt who was looking forward to his classroom training so he could hurry and get his license. To all the students this was their chance to gain a little more freedom. Dalphene Parks, the range instructor, had a very positive attitude about all the students she had taught and concluded with the statement, "I truly hope that they develop into safe and responsible drivers." This class was not only fun for the students, but it also taught them safe driving habits.

Theresa Fallon struggles to complete the eight exercise; Jr. King braces himself.

Glen Martin takes advantage of the pay phone outside. I wonder who he is talking to?

Sasha Cimmermanis is constantly on the phone. Talking on the phone is a way of life for Sasha.

Our Favorite Pastime

Talking Our Way To The Top

Before we had telephones people would write letters, send telegraph messages or wait to talk in person. Now that we have telephones, we use them all the time. Those who do not have phones in their houses will walk to a friends or use a pay phone. There are even people with more than one line on their phone and the newest craze — a car telephone.

We use the phone to communicate with our friends, to waste time or to ease boredom. Deena Bridges commented that she talked on the phone, "To get away from people."

Most people said they gossiped on the phone. Others said their favorite subject to talk about was movies and their plans for the weekend. Crystal Rockhill joked, "I talk about the nice-looking guys in my classes." Most girls said they talked about their diets and a lot of the guys admitted that they talked about the girls after their diets.

Talking on the phone is something everyone has in common. Telephones were our main source of communication when we couldn't be with one another. What would we do without them?

F-f-f-f-feet

Best Foot Forward

Setting out on foot, people were headed in all directions, on their way to classes, the lunchroom, and to after school practice. The halls were all crowded, especially the locker area. Our feet were always being stepped on by students rushing to class. When people stepped on the back of our shoes, we got frustrated and didn't know what to do. Kendall Brannock stated, "I like feet because they give me a reason to buy shoes."

Everyone uses their feet whether it be for running to class, participating in school sports, or the fancy foot-work of POM-PONS. Greg Jackson inferred that "Feet are necessary for playing soccer," and Troy Lipcsey agreed. Feet were expected to be functional.

Feet don't always smell or look wonderful because they pick up dirt. Ed Wendling joked, "I don't like it when girls take off their shoes in class, it's unnecessary."

Self-conscious people such as Stephanie Hornung tried to hide their feet. On their other hand Sandi Barksdale bragged, "I like my feet because they are cute and little." People with larger feet, commonly called "BOATS" were not so proud of them.

To have nice feet always be sure to clean them so they'll be healthy. Yvette Harrison concluded, "Take care of your feet and they will take care of you!"

Erin Goodman puts her shoes to the limit.

Calvin Lucas leads on a bunch of dancing feet.

Jason Cohen, Jolie Menear, Chris Ducey, Michelle Liedel, Dawn Moore, Allison Glace, Lisa Teaster, and Christiane Holtz all kick up in the Senior Lounge.

Lockers We Live In

Share In!!!

The fight for top lockers began on the first day we were here. If you were lucky and were assigned an upper locker you had to quickly put a lock on it or you lost it. Carrie Stangel was assigned a top locker and before she put a lock on it three people had tried to inhabit it. When the word got out that you had a top locker many people became very friendly; hoping for an invitation to share!

One student says "people I don't even know very well asked me if I wanted to share my locker!"

One pressure in having a top locker was the struggle against gravity.

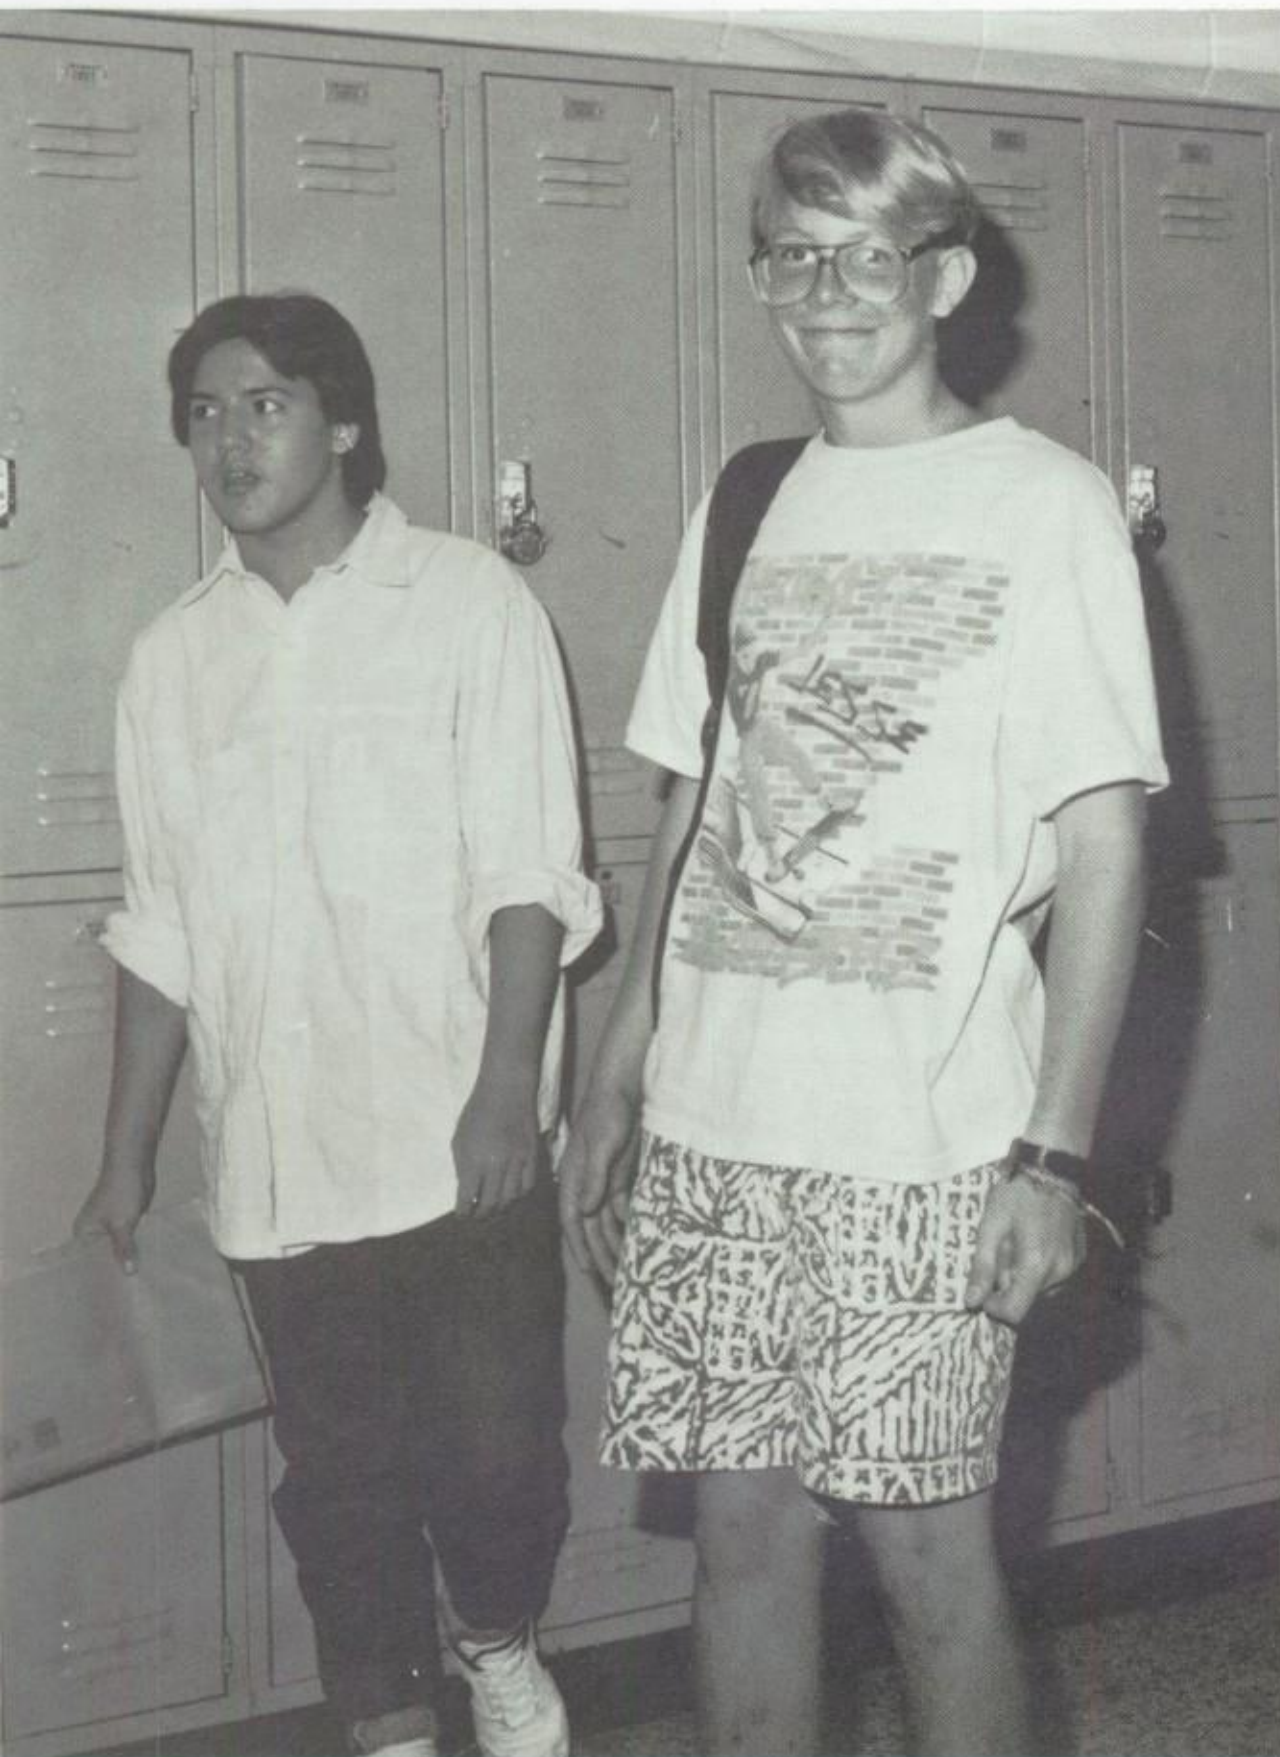

Fun in the locker room! Timmy Dinkle, Shannon Smith, and Angela Firkins enjoy a 5 minute break between class.

You tried to keep all those books from falling on the person below, but it was bound to happen; they got smashed in the head with your Human Phys. or History book. Ken Knickerbocker commented on how dangerous it was to have a locker underneath Andrea Stephens and Mary Waller; "They dropped books on me everyday and even hit me with the door to their locker." This was a fate no one should of had to endure. Experience taught us to lock that top one quickly before it was history!!!

Felecia Hobbs prepares for college while Tom Cruise watches over her.

Books and more books!! Could all these belong to one person!

John Restor and John Lohmeyer wander around looking for their lockers.

Trying to get to class before the bell, Mike Knapp rushes to get his books.

Beth Cloe demonstrates the right way to dump a lunch tray.

Scott Craver waits patiently to pay for his purchases.

Mike Andre and Ed Wendling share their fries on the way to the cash register.

The Senior Court is a place for seniors to get away during lunch. Paige McDuffee takes advantage by enjoying her ice cream and orange juice.

"Hey guys, let us in on the joke." Juniors, Alex Darrough, Greg McCoy, and Thom Shull let out their frustrations during lunch.

Lunch Experience

Eating On The Run

Five minutes till' the bell. It was almost lunch time. As the bell rang everyone rushed out the door toward the cafeteria, to have the "group" table (the one we've had prearranged since receiving our schedules), or be the first in line for the days special, or grab something from the snackbar and make the usual "Hey, what's up?" rounds. (making sure to hit all the spots.)

After the whole group arrived, you'd head for the line. During the 5-10 minutes you waited you catch up on the latest, that monstrous Human Phys. test or how tough English was. "We usually talk about the latest couples and who broke up with who," states Nicole Brown.

Then the big decision, what to get; there are so many. After the decision you spend anywhere from 85¢ to $2.00 for lunch, depending on the extras.

Finally it was back to the table where the chair search began. "Trying to find a chair was the worst thing about the lunch," states sophomore Matt Bestick. By the time you got around to actually eating lunch, your 25 minutes had dwindled down to 3 or 4. So it was a race to finish, take up the tray, and don't forget, "Green on green, yellow on yellow," and off to your next class.

Pet Peeves

Annoyed and Tolerated

It was third period and you had a major test in English. Your palms were sweaty while nervously waiting for the exam. The teacher went down your isle and gave you the ten page test which had to be finished by the end of the period. There were five minutes left and you still had three essay questions to answer. Then all of a sudden you heard someone's fingers beating on their desk and you lost all concentration. Was that a classic case or what?

This was just one example of many irritating habits we called pet peeves. There are many more; for example people who chewed fingernails, shook the desk in front of them, put make-up on in class, twirled their hair, copied people's homework, and bit on the end of a pencil. Becky Goss' biggest complaint was "when girls chew on their hair." On the other hand, Rhonda Wilson confessed that she was guilty of "shaking people's desks in front of me." These two girls expressed their opinion. What was yours?

During the research of my topic, I found that pet peeves are very common among people. But what we must all understand was that we must try to recognize our quirks and cope with the habits of our friends.

Heather Andrews works hard while chewing on her hair. Does it taste good?

Terry Prater is enjoying his pen. Art class makes him very nervous and hungry.

While sleeping, Jeffrey Shelton is heard snoring. This class seems to be very strenuous.

Graffiti

Young Man's Media

"-It was fun! Everybody did it," stated Sheri Boisot. Graffiti was a form of self expression done by the meek as well as the bold; sometimes done in secret or by whole groups of people.

Graffiti was everywhere. It was found on notebooks, clothing, on bathroom doors, lockers, and the student parking lot.

Graffiti was written in public places for everyone to read. For example, on notebooks, the most common phrases were from the heart, reading, "Johnny loves Jackie — True love always" and "My heart is forever with Charles and Charles Jr." On jeans and shoes were written phrases such as "Go Home Communists!" and "I Love Turkey Sandwiches!" In bathroom stalls, the most common thing seen was "Ginger is a babe" and "I hate Henry!"; and in the student parking lot was "North Stafford is #1" and "The Class of '88 rocks till it hurts!"

Jenny Smythe considered graffiti "Visual Pollution and Vandalism". The world should not have been a tablet for self expression, but who could resist inscribing their honey's name and a heart on an old oak tree or on a vacant spot for the world to read.

graffiti, it strikes everywhere, even the phone booth. We will always wonder if Vinnie still loves Criste.

Andrea Stevens shows her school spirit. Others have joined her this year decorating the student parking lot.

Our favorite garbage barrel portrays a large '88 for school spirit. The school parking lot is the home for this graffiti.

We don't know what's inside; but we do know what's on the outside — school spirit.

Spirit Week

"Moving into Position"

The pace was set. North Stafford was ready to move into position for Homecoming '87. The enthusiasm was there and everyone was ready to go. Tuesday was just the beginning of an exciting and eventful week. When we all reached school that day, it seemed that many of us were seeing double. Finding a friend and dressing alike seemed the best way to represent Twin Day. Nerds invaded us on Wednesday while Thursday brought us back to the first day of kindergarten. Lunch boxes, crayons, and name tags were just a few of the essential things needed for this day. Finally on Friday, the entire school had a chance to dress in orange and blue. Everything from blue hair to orange tennis shoes represented our spirit. Friday was also the day Seniors enjoyed the traditional honor of wearing hats and glasses to school.

The Thursday night pep rally was just a preview for Friday night. The Wolverine spirit and enthusiasm soared. We were ready to take on the world. The band entertained us with their music while the cheerleaders had no trouble showing us the meaning of spirit. Class skits took place and all fall sports teams were introduced. The Pom Pon Squad ended the evening with a routine that spirited everyone.

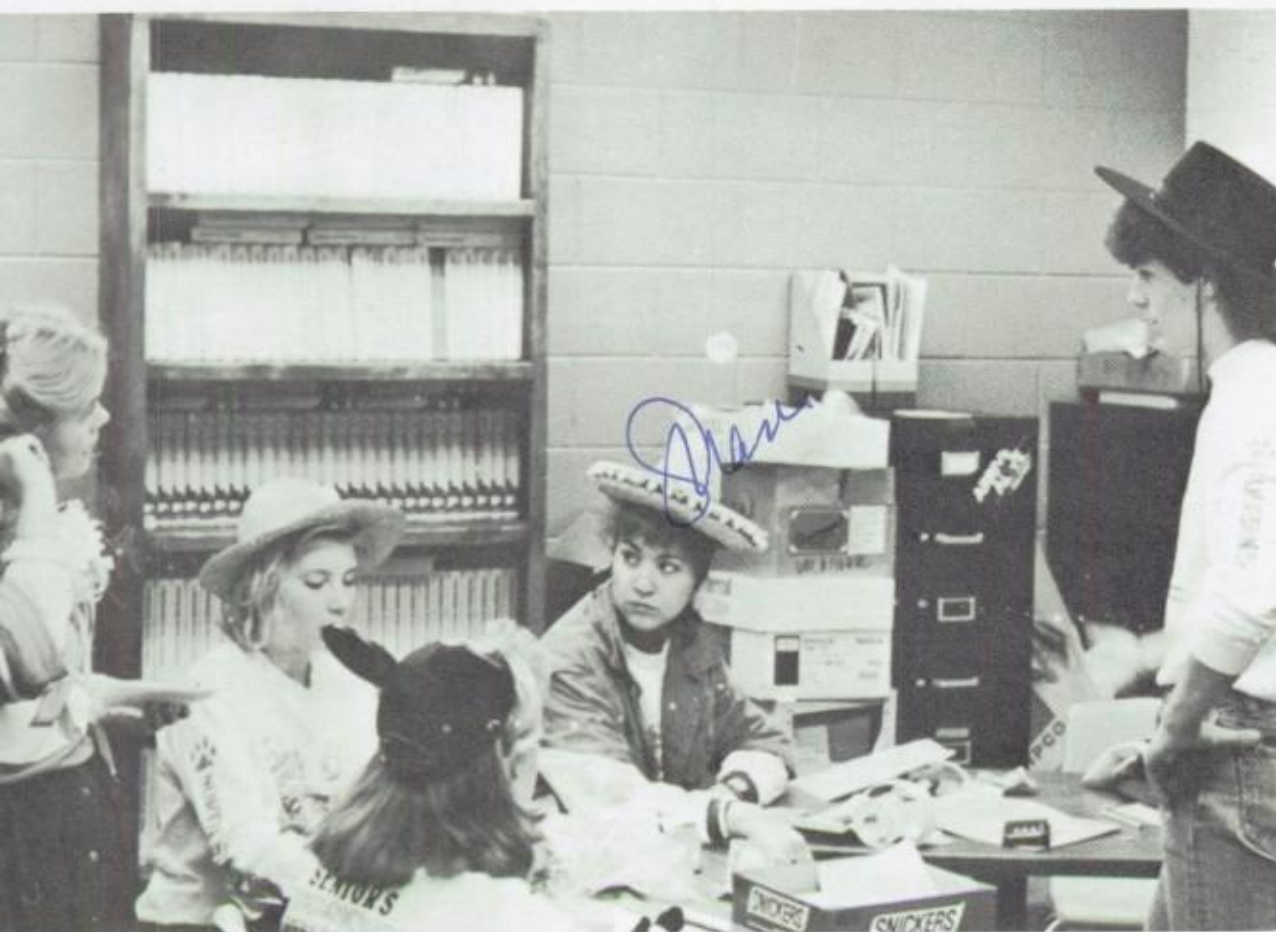

Spirit Week was a great success for all classes. "It was a lot of fun, because it gave everyone a chance to show their spirit," smiled Carrie Altis.

Seniors — Carol Siner, Robin Duncan, Rhonda Wilson, and Christina Holtz show the best way to represent themselves.

Mrs. Trant and Mrs. Farmer show how much fun it can be to have a twin.

Becky Goss, Shani Bishop, Rikk Yeoman, and Rhonda Wilson display their hats while working with Ms. Inge.

Shelly Smith shows what it's like to be a nerd.

The Nerds Invade! Ernie England, Stephanie Hornung, Mike Rawlings, Laura Stapelton, Melisa Schellin, John Kenyon, Jennifer Smyth, Matt Hough, and Barbra Slis.

The Homecoming Class Float winner was the Sophomore class. The sophomores have once again proven themselves to have the most spirit; this is the second consecutive year they have won.

This years Homecoming Queen and King were Stephanie Hornung and Dion Lee. Both these students are representatives of our fine Senior Class.

The Wolverines scramble during the Homecoming game against Woodbridge. Football spirit has always been high at North Stafford.

Coming Home

A Reason to Celebrate!

When asked what "Homecoming" meant SCA President Ernie England responded by saying, "Homecoming is a time when we can show our school spirit and a time we can reunite with former students." North Stafford students showed their school spirit all week but their cheers could really be heard Friday night.

The highlight of the night began with the parade of floats. This years theme was "Through the Years." The floats that were rated "number one" were the sophomore class, whose theme was Prehistoric North Stafford", and in the clubs category, the winner was SADD.

To top the halftime activities was the crowning of this years Homecoming Queen and King. All over the stadium, cheers were heard when Stephanie Hornung was crowned Queen and Dion Lee, King. To wrap up Homecoming activities, the SCA held North Stafford's annual Olympics. Coming out on top, was the Ski Club, and one point behind came the Seniors. Saturday night brought this year's Homecoming dance, which was said to have the biggest turnout in North Stafford's history.

All in all, the spirit, the pride, and the successes made the 87- 88 North Stafford Homecoming one that will never be forgotten.

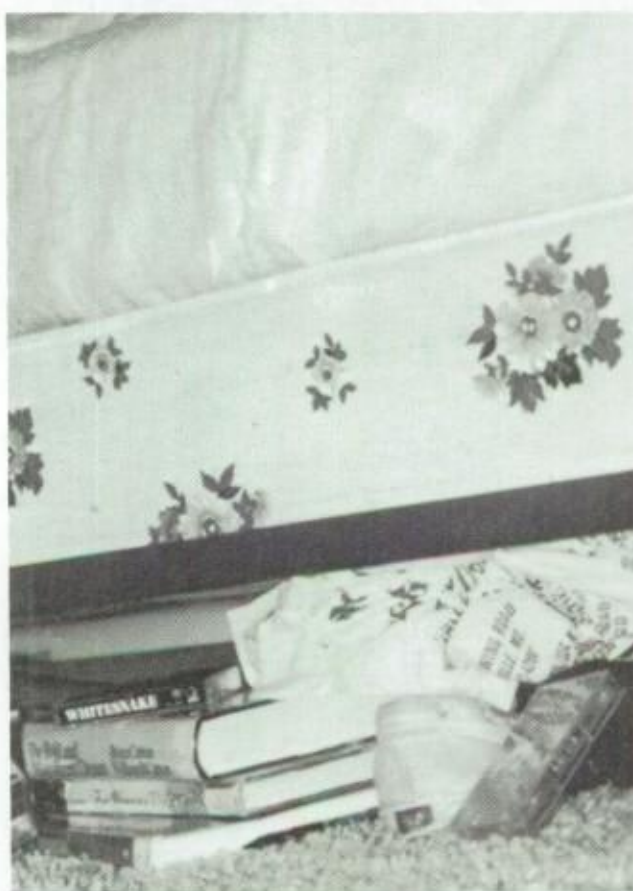

Wendi Ouellette, Shelly Smith, Stephanie Hornung, and, Jenny Smythe pose on twin day. Don't you wonder if their beds are as neat as their lockers?

Let's see what we can find under David Magensen's bed.

Yuck! Where Did That Come From

Looking under your bed you never know what you will find.

Bruce Comeyne, Wendi Howe, Mike Siler, Rachel Anderson, Angela Firkins are very happy because their beds are clean.

Let's catch up on some old news.

— What's hiding under that bed? —

Come on everyone, admit it. There has been some stuff under your bed you probably did not know about. You know, things like molded peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, missing pets, clothes, smelly shoes, dust colonies, etc. Why were these things there? Was it because you were hiding it or just too lazy to find a home for some items? For most people there was no place else to put their junk; so they threw it under the bed.

"I have a tool box, old batteries, homework from the sixth grade, old posters, and a project from the fourth grade," declared Doug Wright.

"There are old clothes, shoes, stuffed animals, my cat who sleeps there, a blanket, and some dirty dishes under my bed," revealed Jennifer Durgin.

"I have a Hackey Sack, half of a skate board, a golf ball, socks, and a 2x4 under by bed," stated Mike Gionta.

If you were looking for adventure, there was no need to go far. You just had to explore under beds. You were bound to find something interesting hiding under there, maybe even something you had never seen before.

I have been fun doing you in my class this year you have been a good friend and have made me laugh. Good luck in all you do.
Thanks forever

The summer doesn't end with the first day of school. Debbie Walker, Lisa Vaughn, and Chip Hamner show how to have fun in the sun.

Cutting Loose

Living It Up!

By the time our '87 summer vacation arrived we were all in need of a rest. Shannon Jones explains "I left for Europe in July and returned in August." Carolyn Mabra remarked "I spent the first week of August sunning on Virginia Beach." Mary Rabon told how she "watched the guys play football on the beach right outside her beach house on Southern Shores Beach in North Carolina." A lot of people decided to work at McDonald's, Wendy's, Potomac Mills Mall, or Spotsylvania Mall.

Some of the guys got jobs doing construction or working on cars. A few people took to being lifeguards at local pools while some of us just lounged at the pools.

Summer was there and we each had our own fun. Then it was time to pick up our books along with our study habits and make our year as interesting and enjoyable as possible; so that we could once again cut loose and live it up in the summer of '88.

The gang's all here: John Cole, Kevin Tehan, Eva Warner, Erin Goodman, Glen Fitzgerald, Greg Stangl, Lauren Parker, Billy Cimino, Kelly Spense, James Schweitzer, and Brenda Jasmund. Lucky North Stafford students visited Germany this summer.

Lauren Parker takes a break. The long walk all over Germany was quite tiring.

Confessions of a Double Door

The Fashions I've Seen!

The last student of the '88 school year walked by me leaving behind silent hallways. Being a double door my movements remained small but I knew what was going on. I overheard what people liked, saw what they wore, and felt their textures. Bright and early they'd come my way and I'd welcome them openly. They were all dressed so nice in the mornings. Then that 2:15 bell would ring and BOOM! They slammed me against the wall. Rushing out to cars and busses with shirt tails out, wrinkled skirts, and wearing those cool sunglasses even on cloudy days.

I always knew when it was the first day of school. Everyone had on new clothes. They rattled my hinges shouting compliments. "Hey, love your dress. Is it new?" "Nice shoes, can I borrow them sometime?"

When I started spotting the football jerseys, I knew fall was outside. Fuzzy sweaters brushed by me and I thought how nice it must be to be wrapped in them.

Winter rushed in quicker than ever before. The students ran to the warmth I held inside. Their bulky coats of wool, leather, and snug gloves looked warm as they rushed by. Boots pounded as they ran. All I kept hearing was, "I can't wait for spring."

Spring was welcomed wholeheartedly, jams and T-shirts were in. "The beach look is back!" Their pale legs stood out like white dots on black fabric, but soon they'd be tan. This was the time of year "spring fever" ran high. "Hey, let's skip and go lay out." "I wish school was over!"

School was almost over and excitement rose with the coming of summer. Girls, who's long hair had brushed me all year, now had short hair. I suppose it will be cooler during the hot summer months.

I remember the last day best. The graduation robes caught my handles as the seniors prepared to say goodbye to their high school life. The making of high school ended for them. But as for me, I think I'll just hang around and see what happens next year.

Jacque Island in her cool sunglasses enjoys the bright sunny day. Showing off those tan legs, Tracy Jenkins feels the heat.

David Blake takes pride in his dapper appearance for school. His optimistic scholastic attitude really shines through.

Mickey Davis helps Lynette Hoffman create her own school spirited fashion. Sandi Barksdale takes a moment to point this out to our school photographer.

Melissa Peoples and Joseph Bayliss express their unique spirit. Comfortable cloths make for a relaxed day.

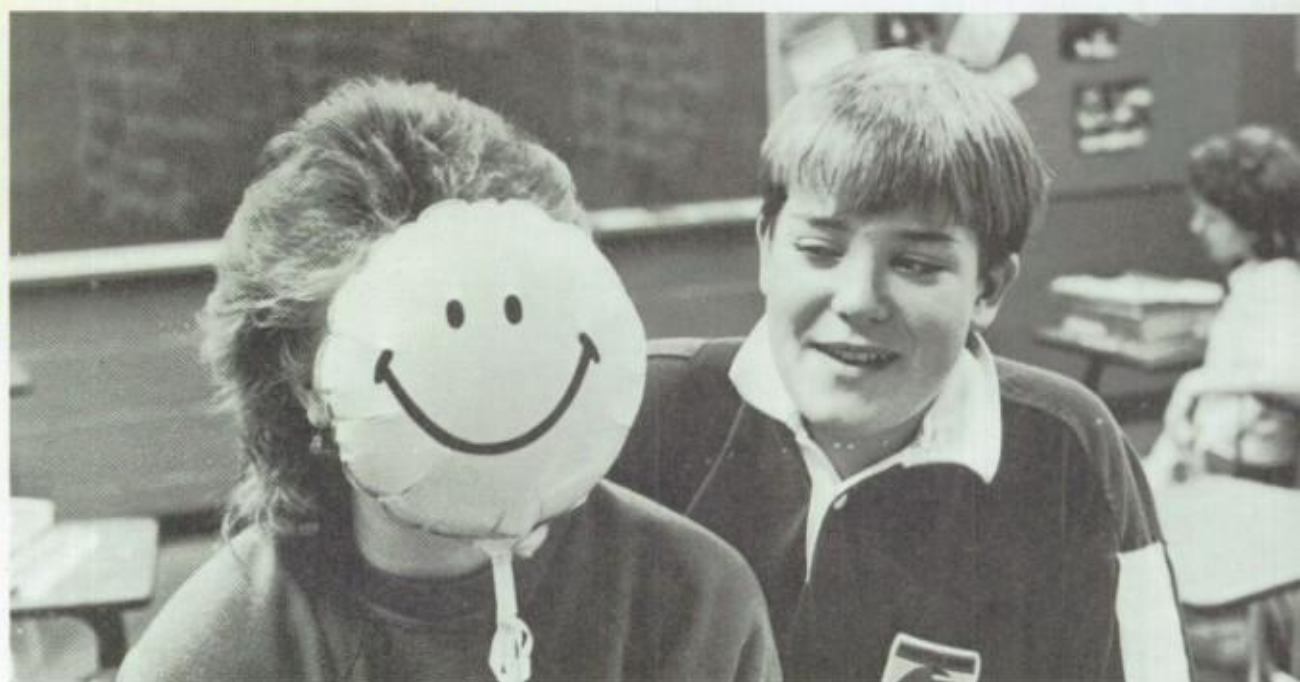

Just standing around during lunch, Alberto Clark, Howard Johnson, Gene Elliot, and Poppy Anglin are looking cool. Wonder if the guys in 2088 will look as cool.

Hey, it's Mr. Smiley Face. No, it's really Colleen Furman and Thomas Stasko having fun as they would in 2088.

Here's James Ashby as the student of the future. He is preparing to do his homework for Biology.

Ernie England displays his headgear for spirit week. He also looks like a student from the future.

In 2088

Taking a new direction . . .

"How was your day, Robert?" the Cybernaut asked.

"It was hectic. Everything went wrong. I was late to homeroom because the elevator from ground floor to sublevel twelve broke down. I lost my Biology diskette. To top it off, my computer malfunctioned during the big Alpha Centaurian History test!"

As you can see, school life in the future might be different. For instance, getting to school might be easier because transporter beams can whisk you to school. The school might become larger by having more floors and might go underground. In the classroom all work would be done on computer and all notes would be kept on diskettes.

Another thing that could happen to high schools is they might only be two years long. A student would be a freshman and a sophomore one year, then a junior and a senior the second.

North Stafford in 2088 may sound exciting with the technology of 2088, but the best part, friendship, would still be the major part of the high school experience in 2088, just as it is in 1988.

Mike Carson, Travis Sayers, and Lee Russell are getting a good laugh from talking about school life in the future.

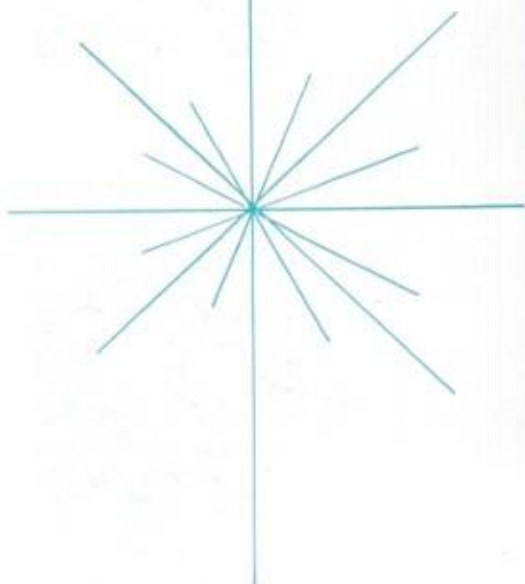

Chance Bowling tries to rest up before making his long journey to homeroom. He doesn't seem worried that there is only one minute to the bell.

John Kuchera rushes to get to class on time. He seems very determined to make it to class.

Panic at Bell

Sailing through Halls

Elton Becker claims, "So what, I'm late. It happens to everyone!"

Anthony Myers "zooms" to beat the tardy bell. Anthony seems serious about being to class on time.

As you walked through the hall talking with friends, time evaporated leaving you with only a few seconds to go to your locker and get to class. Panic Struck! We saw others as they ran down the halls and the thought of being late panicked us as we raced down the hall to class. If the bell beat you to the door, you were late. Teachers either asked for a pass or they just counted you tardy. How do students feel when they walk in late? "No big deal! Most of my teachers do not even notice," said senior Karen Kruse. Excuses! Excuses are a big part of being late. "I was walking down the hall and I saw this great looking girl, I just had to ask her name," was offered senior Sean Johnson. The most excuses used were the "fights in the locker room." This was used by many on unsuspecting teachers. There were real reasons students were late. Jammed lockers, crowded hall ways, or a stubborn lock. Some students have just walked into class late with out fear or regret. That was when they paid the price and even faced dreaded detention.

After just making it in the door, Brent Calhoun, rests before his teacher takes role. Brent is probably dreaming up an excuse of why he was late yesterday.

The Interclub council (ICC) was an organization consisting of the president and officers of each individual club. The ICC functioned in coordinating and carrying out service and social activities.

ICC participated in various activities throughout the year. The annual ICC Retreat, the Olympic Games, the Adopt a Grandparent Program, and the Sunshine Committee were examples of this years' activities.

Project Pride, a project for the beautification of our school; Peer Counseling, a group that consisted of student counselors; and The Drug Program which consisted of guests speaking on drug and alcohol abuse were three major programs that ICC accomplished. All activities of the ICC represented members of each club and the student body.

Model United Nations

The Model United Nations, MUN, sponsored by Mr. Crawford, was a student presentation of the real United Nations. They debated current events hindering world peace. It was a growing club recommended for students interested in debating, current events, public speaking, and arguing challenges. The MUN was based on principles of the U.N. charter and the promotion of young ambassadors and world leaders on their way to making future decisions in the capital or in the real United Nations.

History Club

The History Club was dedicated to reviving an interest in history affairs in our world. Throughout the year the History Club participated in many activities, in and out of school. This year the History Club promoted the Constitution's 200th birthday, escorted foreign officers around our school, wrote to pen pals and enjoyed a feast. We looked forward to having as great of a success next year.

The 1987-88 officers were: President — John Wildgrube, Secretary — Nicole Brown, Treasurer — Todd Fairfax, and Sponsor — Mrs. Charlotte Butler.

The Future Business Leaders of America, FBLA, was an organization which was focused on preparing its members to join the business world. Some of the goals of FBLA were to enhance personal qualities of its members, such as: to develop business leadership skills, build self-confidence, and encourage scholarship and responsibility.

During the course of the year, FBLA sold Tom Watt products, as a fund raiser, gave treats to faculty members at Halloween, provided food baskets to a needy family at Thanksgiving, sponsored a dance in February, and had many other activities for its members to enjoy throughout the year.

FBLA officers were: President — Jason Cohen, Vice President — Kara Bush, Secretary — Lisa Smyka, Treasurer — Stefanie Stephens, Reporter

— Darren Scercy, Historian — James Shelton, and Sponsors — Betty Browning and Brenda Cash.

Future Homemakers of America

L. to R.: Mrs. Lutz, Leslie Cann, Lee Ann Barnosky, Jenniffer Hornung, Cheryl Rudich, Miss Egner.

Future Homemakers of America was a state and national organization of young men and women studying home economics in high school. HERO (Home Economics Related Occupations) was made up of students enrolled in an occupational program. At North Stafford FHA/HERO combined to make one club.

Our activities ranged from speakers on current topics, going to the Lazy Susan and to community services. We were a growing organization and we were open to anyone who had been enrolled in a home economics class at least one year. President: Rebecca Hybl.

S.A.D.D.

Students Against Drunk Driving was a service organization that operated to promote school and community awareness about the hazards of drinking and driving. Membership was open to all students at North Stafford.

The club planned one school and one community activity a month. Special emphasis was placed on working with area middle schools, and establishing a driving drunk hotline for Stafford County and surrounding areas. This year's officers were: President — Jennifer Baker, Vice President — Erin McCabe and Robin Durran, Secretary — Arlene Winter, and Sponsor — Mrs. Pam Puryear.

Fellowship of Christian Athletes

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes was more than a club that played games. F.C.A. met biweekly and discussed relevant topics that involved our faith. This year our plans included attending two weekend retreats as well as growing in our faith. This year's officers were: President — Billy Ciminio, Vice-President — Michael Sprumont, Secretary/treasurer — Sandy Turner, Sponsor — Mr. Bill Lontz.

North Stafford's literary magazine, The North Wind, provided an opportunity for young artists and writers of the school to see their work in print. Each year students submitted essays, photographs, short stories, plays, art, and poetry to be reviewed by the magazine staff. The best pieces were then compiled, and a quality magazine was published. Everything to do with the magazine was produced by students — from design to writing and printing.

With the support of the student body, the magazine became an important activity of North Stafford High School. This year's staff was headed by John Wildgrube.

If an exciting event occurred, it was bound to be covered in The North Star. This enthusiastic group worked hard to bring the student body up to date on events that occurred in and out of school. Events were covered with clear, concise stories that matched students' interests. The editor was Sarah Kladder.

Computer

Second Row: Joe Sincavage, Alex Darrough, Greg McCoy

Computers rule the world! In this fast paced world of technology, one needs to get information fast. That is why young people of North Stafford were learning about computers. The Computer Club spent the 1987-88 year dedicated to the cause of spreading the knowledge of computers. Throughout the year, we had guest speakers and went on trips to museums. Our sponsor, Mrs. Saylor, led us through this tough year of reorganization.

Our officers this year were: President: Carrie Stangel, Secretary/Treasurer: Joe Sincavage and student advisors Steve Raymond, Greg McCoy, and Alex Darrough.

Key Club

At NSHS, the Key Club was responsible for raising the flags at the front door, unlocking the elevator for the physically challenged students, and parking cars at home football games. Away from school, the Key Club decorated the childrens ward at the hospital, provided food for the holidays, and collected aluminum can tabs to pay for a child's dialysis.

Science

The Science Club got into the ever popular activity this year of caving. A small group went to Fountain Cave in western Virginia for a day trip. Another trip planned for the first time was an overnight trip to the Naval Observatory. Each year the club has tried to raise money for going on field trips and purchasing equipment for the Science Department. We had a car wash in November and sponsored a dance after a basketball game in February. The sponsors were: Mr. Lontz and Mr. McCloud.

MATH

The Math Club was a group of students with a common interest in mathematics. During our meetings we discussed subjects in math, held small contests for cash, and decided how to spend the money received from our dues.

In November, some people from the math league traveled down to Germanna for the annual VCTM-VCU mathematics contest. We have usually had one or two people place each year. We hope North Stafford will always keep its name of the list of winners. The winners were the ones with the highest total on all the tests. The officers were:

President: Jason Weber
 Secretary: Barbara Slis
 Reporter: Mike Peachey
 Sponsor: Mrs. Nancy Chewning

Spanish Club

The Spanish club was open to all students interested in the Spanish language and Spanish-speaking countries. Most members were given the opportunity to participate in various special events and projects with a Hispanic theme. Events for the year included making Guatemalan friendship bracelets, dining at a Spanish restaurant, and having guest speakers. The 1987-88 officers were President — Mike Rawlings, Vice President — Christine Black, Secretary — Laura Tate, Treasurer — Mimi Hamner, Reporter — Jimmy LaRoue and Mrs. Karen Higgs was the sponsor.

German

The German Club was an organization open to all students taking German. The club was involved in the Virginia Organization of German Students. The National Foreign Language Week and Cultural dinners at German restaurants were two activities for club members.

Members organized movie parties and participated in local Volks Marches. This past year the German club traveled overnite to E.C. Glass High School in Lynchburg for the Annual State German Convention.

The 1987-88 officers were: President — Erin Goodman, Vice President — James Schweitzer, Secretary/Treasurer — Jennifer Baker, and Sponsor — Mrs. Judy Warner.

Latin Club

The Latin Club, sponsored by Miss Pomfrey, was an educational club which presented Latin as an enjoyable and vivacious language. Club members participated and competed in such activities as: certmens, The National Latin Exam, and the National and State Latin Conventions; from which the students brought back three first-place ribbons. The Latin Club also sponsored many Roman festivities. Indeed, Latin was not a dead language, but thriving within the Latin Club. This year's officers were: President — Jim O'Neil, Vice President — Brian Horne, Secretary — Shannon Main, and Treasurer — Frank Cates.

French

The French Club was open to all students studying French in the current year. In past years, the French Club has been involved in many activities such as Homecoming and the International Banquet. The club also presented the Award for Academic Excellence in French to a graduating senior.

L. to R. Row one: Kim Crane, Lori Welch, Anthony Shallenburger. Row two: Jan McIntre, Amy Merten, Anne Buss. Row three: Julie Brindock, Maria Sincavage.

The North Stafford High School Orchestra was a very talented group of musicians. Because our numbers had grown, there were two orchestras, which performed together regularly in the school and community. Each year we have had great success at orchestral competitions, and a large portion of our members were selected for honors groups, such as Regional Orchestras and All State. The North Stafford Orchestra kept classical music alive in Stafford County.

Row three: Valerie Williams, Chrissy Chapman, Phil Garza, Mrs. Ross, Greg Stangl, Jeanine Casler, Melika Fitzhugh, John Wildgrube.

Madrigals have been comprised of a small, select group of vocal students who performed both at school and in the community. They also participated in choral competitions, and often continued their musical involvement and training in college.

The 1987-88 officers were: President — Jenny Deblasi, Vice President — Patrick Manigault, Secretary — Marielle Roberts, Treasurer — Michelle Ashford.

An audition and previous choral experience were required for admittance to the group. Students received academic credit and earned letters and trophies for their achievements. Their sponsor was Mrs. Van Buren.

The purpose of H.O.S.A. (Health Occupation Students of America) was to foster and encourage relationships between health care professionals. Another purpose of H.O.S.A. was to increase consumer and health awareness so that people could ensure their own well being.

These goals were met through the use of guest speakers and sponsoring awareness days so that the students of Stafford County could make intelligent decisions regarding their own health. The 1987-1988 officers were: President — Joseph Thompson, Vice President — Kim Perry, Secretary — Tina Burgess, Reporter — Tanya Morgan, Treasurer — Tracy Fry, and Sponsor — Mr. Michael Williams.

The Ski Club had high hopes for the ski season. They planned numerous trips for the winter. One trip to Canaan Valley was scheduled as an overnight extravaganza. For the third year in a row the Ski Club had captured the first place title in the ICC Olympic Games. Hot rockin' T-Shirts were again a big part of the Ski Club experience.

Members were led by President — Steve Raymond, Vice President — Josh Parish, Secretary — Bruce Comeyne, Treasurer — Alex Darrough, Publications Coordinator — Christine Black, and Class Representatives — Karen Kruse, Lenny Comarrata, Bobby Anderson and Natalie Grabill.

SCA

The S.C.A. was the Student Cooperative Association which was headed by President — Ernie England, Vice President — Josh Parish, Secretary — Kristina Franco, Treasurer — Erin McCool, Publications Coordinator — Cindy Aleshire, and their sponsor Mrs. Helen Torosian. The S.C.A. was the organization at NSHS in which the entire student body was a member. The S.C.A. officers were elected by the student body in May 1987. From the time of election they were busy planning activities and programs for the betterment of the student body and the school. This summer they coordinated the I.C.C. (Inner Club Council) retreat which the student leaders of NSHS attended and decided upon the Homecoming theme "Through the Years". They also planned a guest speaker for a school-wide assembly on drug and alcohol abuse and had follow up counselling for students. They had an evening assembly for the parents and community.

National Art Honor Society

The National Art Honor Society was an organization made up of Art Students, grades 10-12. For a new organization, there was a huge response.

The purpose of the National Art Society was to help the school and the community with art related activities. The group helped teachers with bulletin boards and other clubs with posters. They assisted the community in parades and lent artwork to buildings and offices with empty walls.

The students learned to appreciate art and how it could help others. They learned responsibility and how to develop their skills in an extracurricular activity.

Pep Club

L. to R. Cindy Aleshire and Mary Anne Tomlin.

The Pep Club . . . students who worked to promote school spirit. This club motivated students for upcoming events by hanging spirit banners through-out the hallways during the school year. The Pep Club was an active participant in homecoming activities. On the night before the game, the 5th annual homecoming night Pep rally was held in the football stadium. Also during homecoming spirit week the Pep Club sponsored a spirit door contest. Each homeroom was asked to decorate their door in a way which promoted school spirit. The winning door was Mr. Lontz's Senior homeroom.

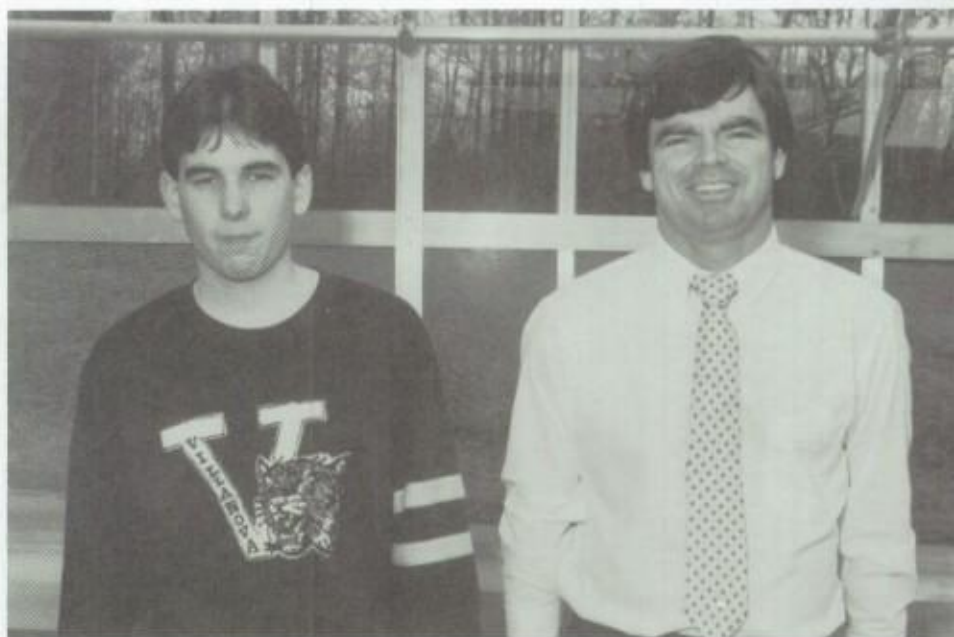

This years officers were President — Andrea McGann, Vice President — Cindy Aleshire. The Pep Club sponsor was Mrs. Helen Torosian.

Battle Of The Brains

The Battle of the Brains was an academic quiz team composed of four members and one alternate. Members were chosen during the fall by competing with other contestants from our school. The members of the 1987-1988 school year were James Asby (captain), Christy Gardner, Lenny Comaratta, and Jennifer Fischer. Success was based on quick recall of facts in fields of most academic classes. The team's sponsor was Mr. Rick Blackburn.

Forensics

Forensics was an activity in which students competed at district, regional, and state contests in such areas as: poetry interpretation, extemporaneous speaking, and original oratory. A school-wide competition was held in December to ascertain which students would be fortunate enough to participate further.

Throughout the '87-'88 year several students spent hours of rigorous training after school.

National Honor Society

Founded in 1921, The National Honor Society was an honorary club devoted not only to the school, but also to the community. The Society was based upon high standards of scholarship, service, leadership, and character. Participants maintained a quality point average of at least 3.6. In addition, members were required to participate in many school and community activities.

The president was Sharri Braxton, Vice-President Laura Stapleton, Secretary Erin McCool. They all worked hard with their sponsor Betty Krapfl.

The Drama Club

The Drama Department at North Stafford High School has been designed to provide students with opportunities in the many creative aspects of theater. There were three levels of Drama classes and one class in Technical Theater. Each year has been designed to include previous aspects of drama; building to the advanced class where the learned knowledge was studied further. The technical class was separate from the others. This dealt with the technical aspects of theater. Students of this class studied skills such as stage design, costuming and much more.

All students were invited to audition for the after school productions. Auditions and practices were run in a professional manner; participation demanded time and discipline. Many members of the drama department were active in the International Thespian Society. This was a world-wide organization that concentrated on accumulating points through experience in theater productions. Mr. Fred Franklin, head of the Drama Department comments: "The Drama Club appeared to be loosely knit bond, however, upon closer inspection it was a very tight organization because it was only composed of the people who spent long and hard hours producing theater."

DECA

The Distributive Education Clubs of America was a student centered organization whose program of leadership and occupational development in marketing was designed specifically for those enrolled in the marketing education program. Student members of DECA learned to serve as leaders and followers and had opportunities for local, state, and national recognition. DECA gave students the opportunity to travel, meet business leaders, and to learn marketing skills. The officers were: President, Lamonta Harris; Vice President, Monica Knapp; Treasurer, Michelle Gring; Secretary, Tracy Jenkins; Reporter, Jacque Hefner; Historian, Lisa Keller; Parliamentarian, Patrick Jenkins

Printing

Through club activities; planned, initiated, and conducted by members; VICA developed the "whole" student in occupational skills.

VICA prepared students for life. It brought together young men and women who shared a common interest for an exchange of ideas, a discussion of problems and the opportunity to work toward common purposes. VICA offered recognition through a national program of awards and contests. It offered curricular activities that made education and training more meaningful.

VICA instilled spirit and a desire to learn, and to grow. It broadened club and state activities.

The VICA sponsor was Mr. Gary Vaughan.

Auto Body

The Vocational Industrial Clubs of America, V.I.C.A., was an organization open to students taking trade, industrial, technical, and health education courses. The North Stafford Auto Body V.I.C.A. club was a 100% membership club this year and for the past two years. This program hoped to better prepare the students for the labor market.

This year's activities included some new interschool skill competitions, pizza parties, and other various fun activities.

The North Stafford Auto Mechanics program belonged to a club called VICA, (Vocational and Industrial Clubs of America). In many cases this was the only club vocational students had a chance to participate in. As a matter of fact, for the last several years Auto Mechanics has had 100% participation.

The students in this club competed in district, state, and national contests. Last year Auto Mechanics placed third in the state. This gave students the opportunity to meet a lot of employers. This club offered students many career challenges and quite often was beneficial in getting jobs.

Yearbook Flashback

The 1987-1988 Yearbook Staff consisted of twenty-three students who took Yearbook class for a credit and a chance to serve the entire school body. Each of the students learned skills of layout, copy, photography and sales, but specialized in one of the areas.

Layout included the placement of all elements on a page and selection of graphics. Copy was responsible for the writing of stories, captions, and headlines. Photography included the taking, developing, and printing of the pictures.

Sales included the promotion, sale and accounting of yearbooks and senior ads. In charge of each group was a student editor: Layout, Dawn Moore; Copy, Kirsten Clark; Photography, Maria Gowallis; Business Manager, Melissa Schelin; Editor-in-chief, Laura Boyer; advisors were Mrs. Austin & Mrs. Douglas.

In addition to class time, all students spent many hours after school to meet all deadlines on time and produce a publication we were proud to offer.

Our students began the year with a great start. There was excellent participation in all extracurricular activities and everyone showed great school spirit and support. Students were very excited and started the year with new routines and different goals to set. For example, Seniors were faced with mailing in college applications and planning a successful future. Juniors were under a lot of stress as they prepared for SAT's, but they also looked forward to becoming seniors. Sophomores were still getting involved in clubs and activities. They also couldn't wait to finally become upper classmen. The Freshman class spent most of their year adjusting to high school, meeting new people, and making a lot of new friends. Although we were individual classes, we stood together throughout the year.

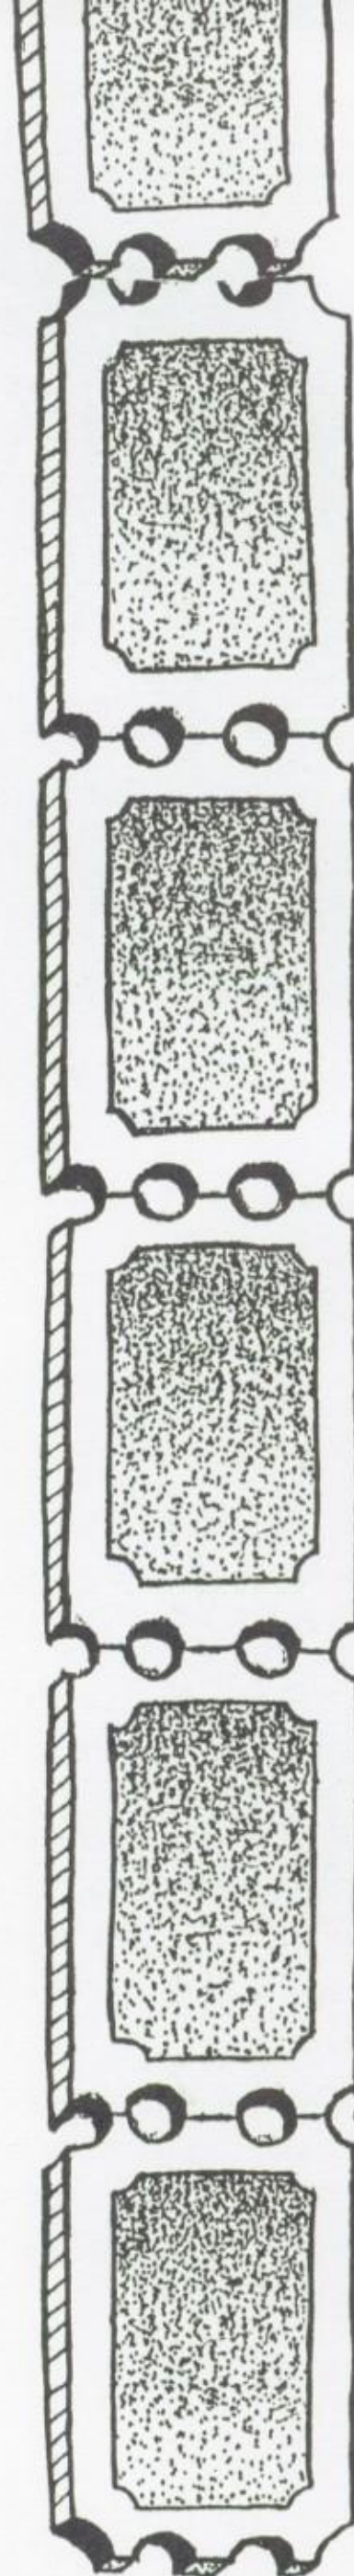

Thoughts of missing 6th period seem to disappoint these students. The pep rally musn't be peppy yet.

THE SENIOR CLASS

Senior Class Officers Stephanie Hornung, Shani Bishop, Rikk Yeoman, Becky Goss and Rhonda Wilson show class unity.

The Senior Class of 1988 was by far a most awesome class. Seniors showed their school spirit at pep rallies and their support of the underclassmen. They became a close-knit group through many senior activities such as the Homecoming float, the Senior Christmas Dance, selling candy as fundraisers, the Senior Picnic, and preparations for graduation.

The Senior Class officers were: President — Rikk Yeoman; Vice President — Shani Bishop; Secretary — Stephanie Hornung; Treasurer — Rhonda Wilson; and Reporter — Becky Goss. These students led the Senior Class through a fun and successful year.

In June, the seniors will be leaving their friends to go off in their separate ways; either off to college, taking on a job, or just taking a break before the move into the "real world".

Most commonly known pets were cats and dogs, but the Senior Class had their own special pet, The Teacher's Pet. We all wondered what their secret techniques were.

Best Couple

Couple is two, but at North Stafford you were more likely to see a group. We always seemed to travel in groups. We all had our dates and out mates, but only a few managed to keep them the same.

Kara Bush and Jason Cohen at their best.

Prettiest Hair

Hours and money gave us each our own style of hair. Sometimes you could tell we spent time fixing our hair and other times you could tell we woke up late. Unfortunately, not everyone was blessed with gorgeous hair.

Most Athletic

These people possessed the physical attributes to successfully complete an athletic task. Whether it be running, shooting a basketball, hitting a baseball, or making a touchdown. These athletes were capable of doing almost anything; often being leaders.

Class Clown

A clown is a person with a curly wig, a big red nose, make-up on, and an outgoing personality. The clowns at North Stafford were not as extreme as this, but they were crazy. The two that the senior class chose FM perfectly.

Best Buns

Buns were mostly found at the bakery. They were usually sticky and sometimes sweet, but they were always good. Buns were also found at North Stafford. They were really hard to ignore considering we were jam packed together in the locker area.

Rikk Yeoman and Laura Tate are proud of their buns

Class Optimist

These people never were seen without a smile and always had an encouraging word to say. They didn't have any negative remarks to add, always positive. When someone was down or sad, these people would make them happier. These people were known as Class Optimists.

Shani Bishop and Ernie England are thinking positive thoughts.

Most Talkative

When we were in school for six hours a day, we had to talk to keep ourselves awake. For some, five minutes in between classes was enough time to catch up on the gossip. However, for a few of us, there was never enough time to talk and what we said was so important!

Jason Cohen and Sheri Boisot live up to their reputation by talking, talking and more talking.

Class Dreamer

Being that this was our senior year, people had a lot to dream about. Whether it was plans for the weekend or for the future, we all dreamed frequently. Teachers, however, were not too pleased, especially when we dreamt right through their classes.

Most Popular

Popularity was an interesting term this year. Because we were seniors, we were all very close. We were a family, therefore, we were all known for something different; some of us were just known better by more people.

Stephanie Hornung and Rikk Yeoman find something funny about being Most Popular.

Most Talented

Talent was a scary subject among the senior class. We were all very talented but not always in areas of importance. Some people were just born naturally talented; they walked, talked, and chewed gum at the same time.

Jacque Ifland and Rikk Yeoman graciously show off their talents.

Best Looking

Perfect physical qualities were what this term most often described. These people were usually admired by many, and envied for their looks. Features of the face and the body shape were taken into account when deciding a winner for this position.

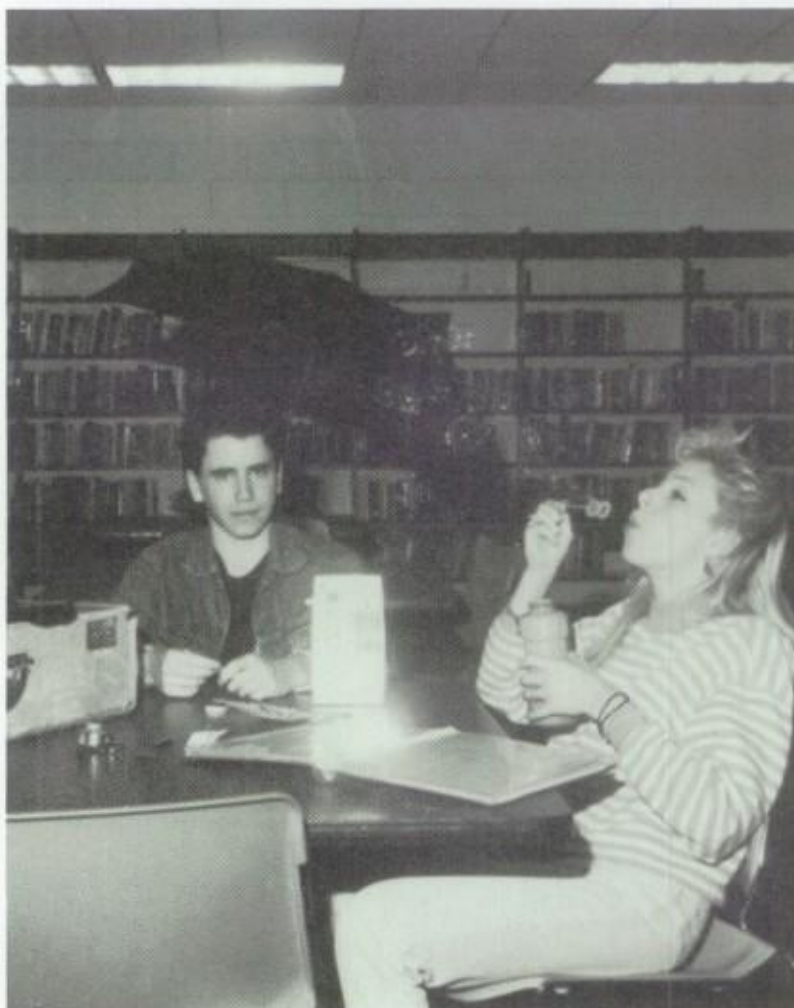

Dion Lee and Dana Nielson sat looking pretty as always.

Most Original

Original meant something new and different. To be original took a great deal of imagination because of being creative. The people who were chosen for this category are special and refreshing.

Best Dressed

Getting dressed for school seemed to give everyone trouble. Having to coordinate everything and be in style was tough. The people who were chosen for this category dressed with class.

Class Individual

Everyone was an individual in their own way; this years seniors had their own class individuals; the ones that some thought were weird, some thought were cool, and the ones the majority thought stood out beyond the rest.

Jon Shaw and Kristina Franco are admiring the nice brick pillar.

Most Likely to Succeed

Success seemed to have been on everyone's mind in 1988. With such cliques as Dress for Success, Success is the Name of the Game, and even a box office hit, "The Secret of My Success." You just couldn't seem to get away from the word.

Most Spirited

The two most spirited students set themselves apart from the rest of the crowd. They were aware of spirit week and had their outfits ready a month in advance. They were the ones that best represented North Stafford spirit.

Jimmy Elms and Jim Parks show their spirit.

Class Dizz

These people were always asking questions when it had just been answered, laughing at any and all jokes, and believing every word you said. These students were often branded the class dizziest.

Best Flirt

Perhaps it was flitting not flirting; whatever it was; it was easy to do. In a school with nearly two thousand students, it was not hard to be nice to people who made it easy to be nice.

Sheri Boisot and Jay Paterson were showing how flirtatious they could be.

Most Likely To Be Late

The most likely to be late were the ones you always saw running down the hall, or standing in the line at the office during home-room. The seniors decided that during the past four years two people acquired the gift of lateness better than others.

Best Legs

Legs came in all shapes and sizes. They were short and long, hairy and smooth, and sometimes even covered with plaster. Whatever shape or form they were in, they always made pleasant scenery.

Sheri Lebherz and Chris Ducey are intertwined; showing who really had the best legs.

Prettiest Eyes

Eyes that sparkle at night and dazzle through the days were the prettiest ones. They were the eyes that showed all emotions; but unlike the rest of us, they were good at hiding the red-tired eyes.

Dawn Moore and Roger Stanton shine their eyes to the Senior Class.

Senior Superlatives

The friendliest were loving, kind, considerate and very jolly. The students at NSHS who said hi to anyone walking in the hall; ones that welcomed all' were known to us as the friendliest of them all.

As this person walked by us in the halls our hearts pounded ten times faster. We couldn't help but stare at them as our hearts fell onto the floor. Two people were know as our favorite heart-breakers.

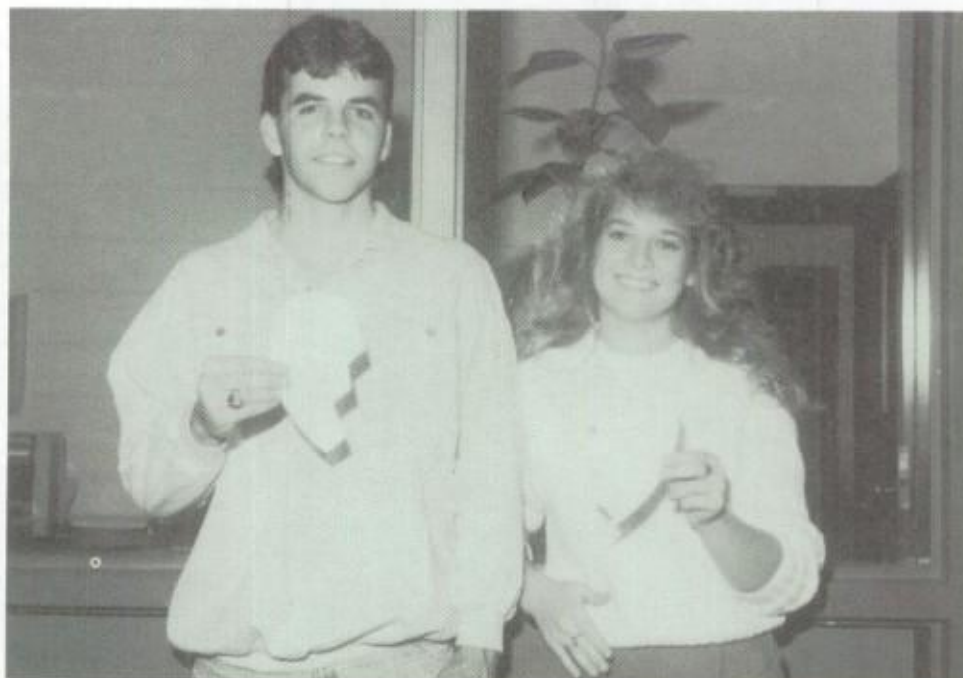

Instead of thinking positive this person thought of the negative or somehow this person believed nothing would turn out right, or often cut themselves down as well as others. Even though these people thought this year wouldn't work out. These people were our class pessimists.

Often this person had a sense of humor and was friendly. This person showed characteristics of being an individual. These people were known to have the best personality.

Every class has one; they were the ones who sat and never said a word. Perhaps they were trying to tell us we were too loud. Although the Senior class was usually blamed for the noise, there was always one or two who went unheard. These people were known as the most quiet.

Dana Nielson and Eric Menke give an example of one of the many hearts they have broken.

Stephanie Hornung and John Ker are showing how friendly they can Tracey Horstkamp and Christine Hudson view their pessimistic world.

Anthony Riley and Stephanie Hornung have no trouble showing off their good personalities.

The Junior Class

The Junior Class had an exciting but busy year. They sponsored a dance and participated in many other fundraisers to help finance the Junior-Senior Prom. The officers traveled to Richmond and picked out a band to play at the prom and they also selected a theme and decorated the cafeteria accordingly.

Many Juniors had the privilege to drive to school instead of having to ride the dreaded buses each morning. One of the more exciting events for the Juniors was receiving their class rings but the most exciting part of the year were the days the Juniors anxiously awaited to become Seniors.

This year's officers were: President — Bruce Comeyne; Vice President — Laura Seiffert; Secretary — Steve Raymond; Treasurer — Kathy Borgeson; Reporter — Chrissi Doss; and Sponsor — Marie Wentworth.

Billy Cimino, Shane Caver, and James Schweitzer meet at Mary Mullin's to talk about the upcoming FCA retreat.

Laura Seiffert, Chrissi Doss, Bruce Comeyne, Steve Raymond, and Kathy Borgeson are fine representatives of the Junior Class.

The Regretted Restriction

Another weekend behind bars for Jimmy Spellman, Doug Graber, and Eric Menke.

It was eight o'clock and I pretended like I was sick to fool my parents. My parents went to bed at nine o'clock and at nine-thirty I crawled out my window. There was a big party tonight and my parents would not let me go out. I thought sneaking out was the best thing to do. I got to the party and thirty minutes later it was busted. I left the party disappointed from all the trouble I had gone through to go there. When I got to my house and crawled into my bedroom, my parents were waiting for me. Apparently my parents had heard the sirens and they woke up, only to see that I was not in bed.

This incident was only one occasion, but there were many more, including: getting bad grades, lying to parents, coming home late, and getting in trouble at school. Hopefully, not many students spent time on restriction this year.

Class Rings

"Will you turn my ring?" cried Angela Firkins. "Whose going to lock your ring?" asked Mike West. These famous lines echoed through the halls of North Stafford during the last weeks of November. The excitement and anticipation built within the class of '89; the guys wondering what it would be like wearing a band of metal around their finger and the girls wondering if their stone will be the right color or whether it would clash with their other rings. Finally, you received your ring. It was either too big or too small, something had to be wrong, it was never perfect. In all of its imperfections your high school class ring was still the perfect symbol to show that you were a part of the Junior Class; a class that in itself was very special.

The Dreaded Oral Report

It was 5:30 in the morning and I could no longer sleep. I had to give an oral report second period in front of my whole math class on Euclids elements. The thought of standing up in front of the whole class embarrassing myself sent chills up and down my back.

First period went by kind of slow but soon it was my turn to give my speech. It was just my luck I had to follow the smartest girl in our class. I got up in front of the class and stood behind the podium. It felt like ten million eyes were staring at me. My first sentence was the hardest one to say; but after that, it was really easy. My speech lasted three and a half minutes and was not half as bad as I thought it would be.

Foreign Exchange Student

Christiane Holtz laughs when told to be jolly.

Christiane Holtz was from Soltare, Germany. She was seventeen years old and attended Soltan High School. Her goal in life has been to be a doctor. Christiane has already taken four years of French and six years of English. Her hobbies included tennis, skiing, windsurfing, handball, sailing, and knitting. When asked about her likes and dislikes of the U.S. she said: "I don't like the drinking age or the junk food; and not being able to go to the bars to dance. I love the people here because they are so friendly. I also like the malls, and all the activities here to do."

Gary Taylor, Terry Edens and Gordon Wills demonstrate the use of necessary equipment for the job.

Students who Care

Many students at North Stafford dedicated their spare time to more than social activities; they were volunteers. Students with the local rescue squads responded to car accidents and other disasters in order to help their friends and neighbors. Squad members had to be certified in either first responder or EMT (emergency medical technician) before they were able to go on calls. In addition to the EMT class they had to apply and be accepted to a squad. One requirement for most squads was pulling at least one duty night per month, so that was where some Friday and Saturday nights were spent. But, all in all, it was for a worthwhile cause.

Student License Plates

License plates expressed personality. If you were walking through the parking lot, you would notice some cars more than others. One reason these cars stuck out was their plates had personality.

The interests of people were shown on some plates. Some were just cute such as Paige McDuffee's "QT 1" or Sandi Barksdale's

"SASS-C". Some had pride and spirit such as Shelly Smith's "NSHS 88". Some wanted to let others know who they were such as Erin McCool's "ERIN VW".

Personalized plates were also a way of recognizing your friends on the road. Just think about it! Whenever you were driving and saw a vanity plate didn't you look twice?

Foreign Exchange Student

Peggy Kammler reflects on her experiences here in North Stafford.

Peggy Kammler from Möncheng-labbach, Germany is seventeen and already has taken seven years of English and four years of Latin. Her hobbies are traveling, writing, horsebackriding, and playing volleyball. After graduation, she would like to work with children. She likes children and even gets along with her sister who is fourteen years old. When asked what she liked about the U.S. she replied "I like how big it is. There is more freedom here. I also like the woods surrounding our home here and how friendly people are." At the end of our conversation, she asked to send a message to her family in Stafford. "I love you and thank you for everything!"

Cars are lined up in the parking lot after the wonderful two day snow and one day of melting.

November Snowfall

This year brought a big surprise in November. On November 11, Virginia got eleven inches or more of snow. The snow, as reported by several T.V. weather newscasters, was just supposed to be a few scattered flurries, but obviously, it wasn't. It also brought joy to students at North Stafford, because school was cancelled for two days.

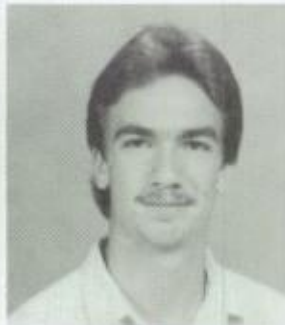

This early November snow fall broke several records. It broke the all time record for most accumulation during the month of November. It was also the earliest and most snow since January of 1983.

Heidi Lossman says "Isn't America Great?"

Heidi Lossman, seventeen years old from West Berlin, went to Kant-Gymnasium high school in her home country. She would like to be either a translator or a pharmacist. Her hobbies have been rolling club, shopping, dancing, and listening to old and new wave music. When asked what she liked and disliked about the U.S. she said, "I like the people here and how relaxed it is, as well as the spirit and the socializing. It is so unconventional." Heidi didn't care for the food and the continuous rules at school. Heidi related this message to her parents: "Thank you for everything, I've had a great time. I love you so much!"

The Sophomore Class

The 1987-88 school year signified a rekindling of enthusiasm for the Sophomore Class. We felt that the emotion and energy that had been shown in previous years began to reemerge. The Sophomore Class also seemed to become more of a unit this year, being drawn more closely together by the successful completion of our freshman year. This energy and closeness also showed in our class activities. We started off the year winning the homecoming float class competition with our dramatic display of the Prehistoric Era, simply entitled Prehistoric North Stafford. We sold sunglasses during December, bringing some sunshine to those dreary winter months, and in February we held our annual candy sale. The unity and enthusiasm of the Sophomore Class was also displayed by our informative bulletin board and in the class dues.

The Sophomore Class was led by Matt Bestick — President, Natalie Corwin — Vice President, Morgen Watts — Secretary, Amy Von Kelsh — Treasurer, and Anita Mullinax — Reporter. Mrs. Trant was the class sponsor.

Amy Von Kelsch, Natalie Corwin, Matt Bestick, Anita Mullinax, and Morgen Watts are this year's Sophomore Class officers.

Tall and Short People . . .

North Stafford had their share of different people. One of the differences was in height. We had some very tall and some very short people.

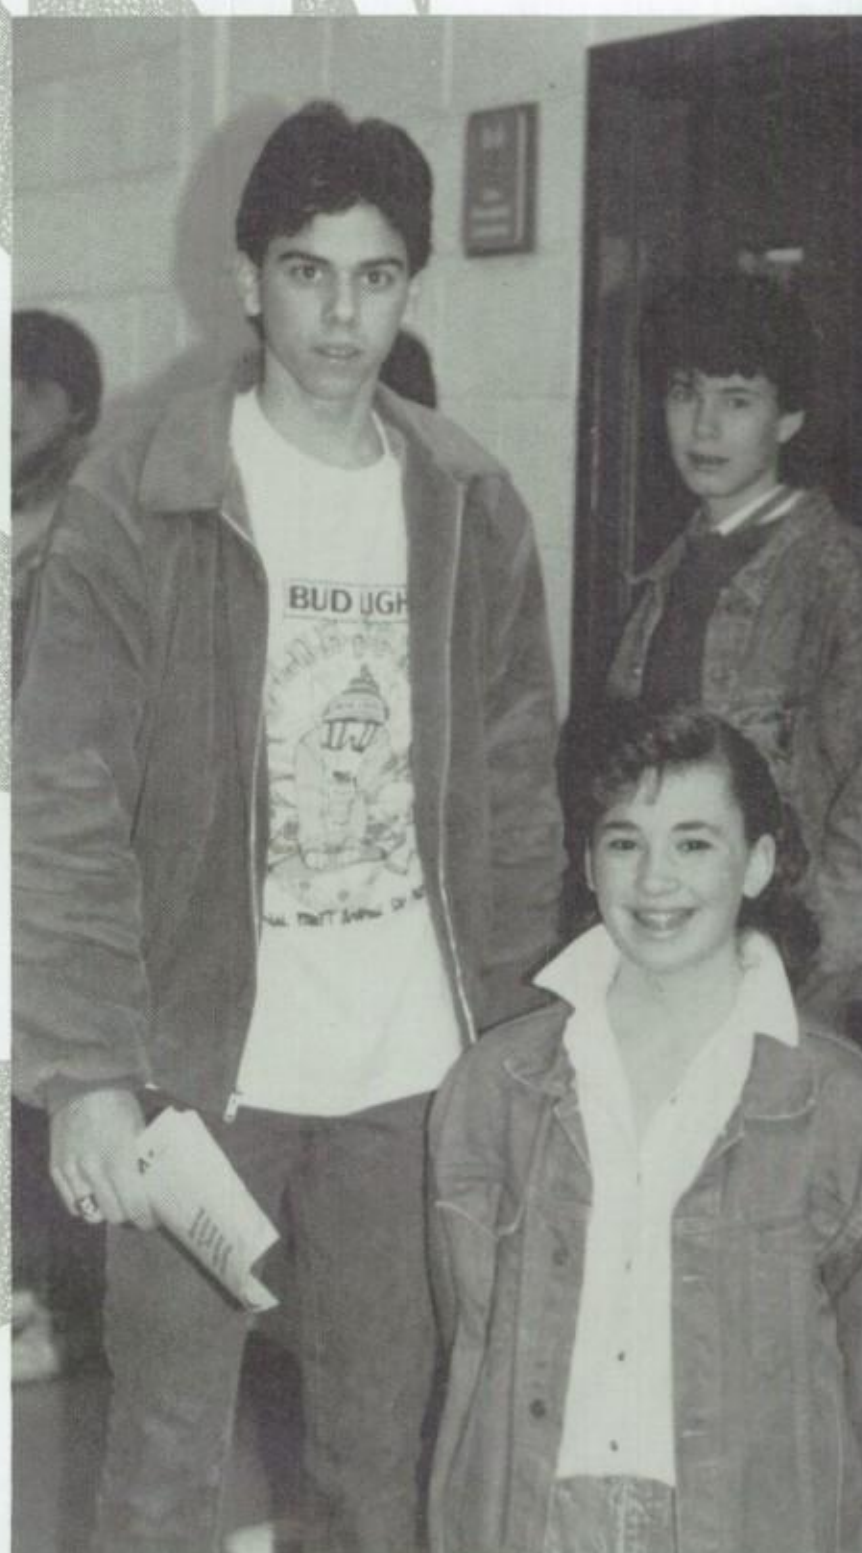

The tall ones could be found on the basketball teams and some couldn't be found on any team. Tall people were often teased by being asked, "How's the weather up there?"

Then there were the short people. They were made fun of because they were shorter than average. They were the one's who were always stuck in the front for pictures and were used as armrests for taller people.

But no matter what a person's height, they were all still alike inside.

Michelle Glace and John Johnston are a good example of how being tall and short can affect the way we dance.

Jenny Kenyon looks even shorter next to David Breeden when she is on her knees.

Flex Classes!

Flex class could bring horror to the ears of some people. How many people really would have liked to go to school an hour early or stay an hour later?

People at North Stafford took flex classes for many reasons. Some took flex so that they could get extra credits and graduate early. Others needed to take flex so they would have all the credits they needed.

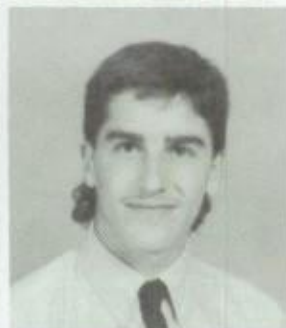

For whatever reason, the people who took flex classes were brave and sometimes very tired people.

Carole plans on going into the Law field. Her hobbies were iceskating, and she liked to go dancing at the night clubs. When asked what she liked about the U.S., Carole said, "I like the people. They are so friendly, open, and spirited!" She also liked the lifestyle we lived. She didn't like the food. "There are too many calories in the food I ate!" she blurted out. Carole sent a message to her family in North Stafford, "Thank you for being open and loving to me. My memories of my life here will live forever!"

Twins, Who's Who?

Twin births are one of the wonders of the world. There are, as most people know, two kinds of twins. The most obvious kind are identical twins. They may seem to look and talk alike, but most will swear to you that they are as different as night and day. Some twins are even mirror images of each other such as one right handed and the other left or one having a dimple in the right cheek and the other having a dimple in the left.

Fraternal twins, on the other hand, are little harder to spot. Some can look almost identical but have tiny little differences. Others can look very different. Some are even a boy and girl set.

No matter if they are identical or fraternal twins, most will tell you they have a special kind of friendship.

Identical Twins, Patrick and Anthony Riley, share everything including their locker.

Did you hear what happened?

Many people had accidents this year which resulted in everything from sprained fingers to broken legs. Everytime you turned around someone else was on crutches. Some injuries occurred in sports play while others were just clutzy mistakes. Whatever the injury, the result was the same; weeks or months in some cases of inconvenience and not being able to participate in anything.

Rockin' to a different beat!

Every now and then in the halls of North Stafford you may have heard students talk about getting together to "jam" or "make some noise." These students were definitely not talking about studying for their next test, or anything close to it. These students were trying to fulfill a dream, a dream of becoming a rock star. There were many bands at North Stafford this year that actually played at Impressions and parties. The names of some of these bands were White Nights, China White, Power Surge, and Tears. They all tried to get in at least two nights of practice a week. All of their hard work paid off when they got a chance to play live. Terry Prater expressed, "If you don't believe in your music you can't be true to your audience." That was what kept these students working hard toward their dreams.

Life's A Beach

It was a dark and very cold morning. There were 120 students from both North Stafford and South Stafford gathered in the parking lot at Stafford High School. It was 5:30 A.M. on October 5, 1987, when these students boarded charter buses bound for Virginia Beach. Believe it or not, it was an educational trip as well as a fun one. Between the occasional dunking of students and teachers, the students managed to catch enough fish to fill seven salt water tanks. After a very long day of boating and beaching, both the students and the fish managed to find themselves a comfortable bed; the fish in their tanks and the students in their houses.

Sean Johnson and Michael Saltz show their enthusiasm while digging holes in the sand. Actually it looks more like play than work.

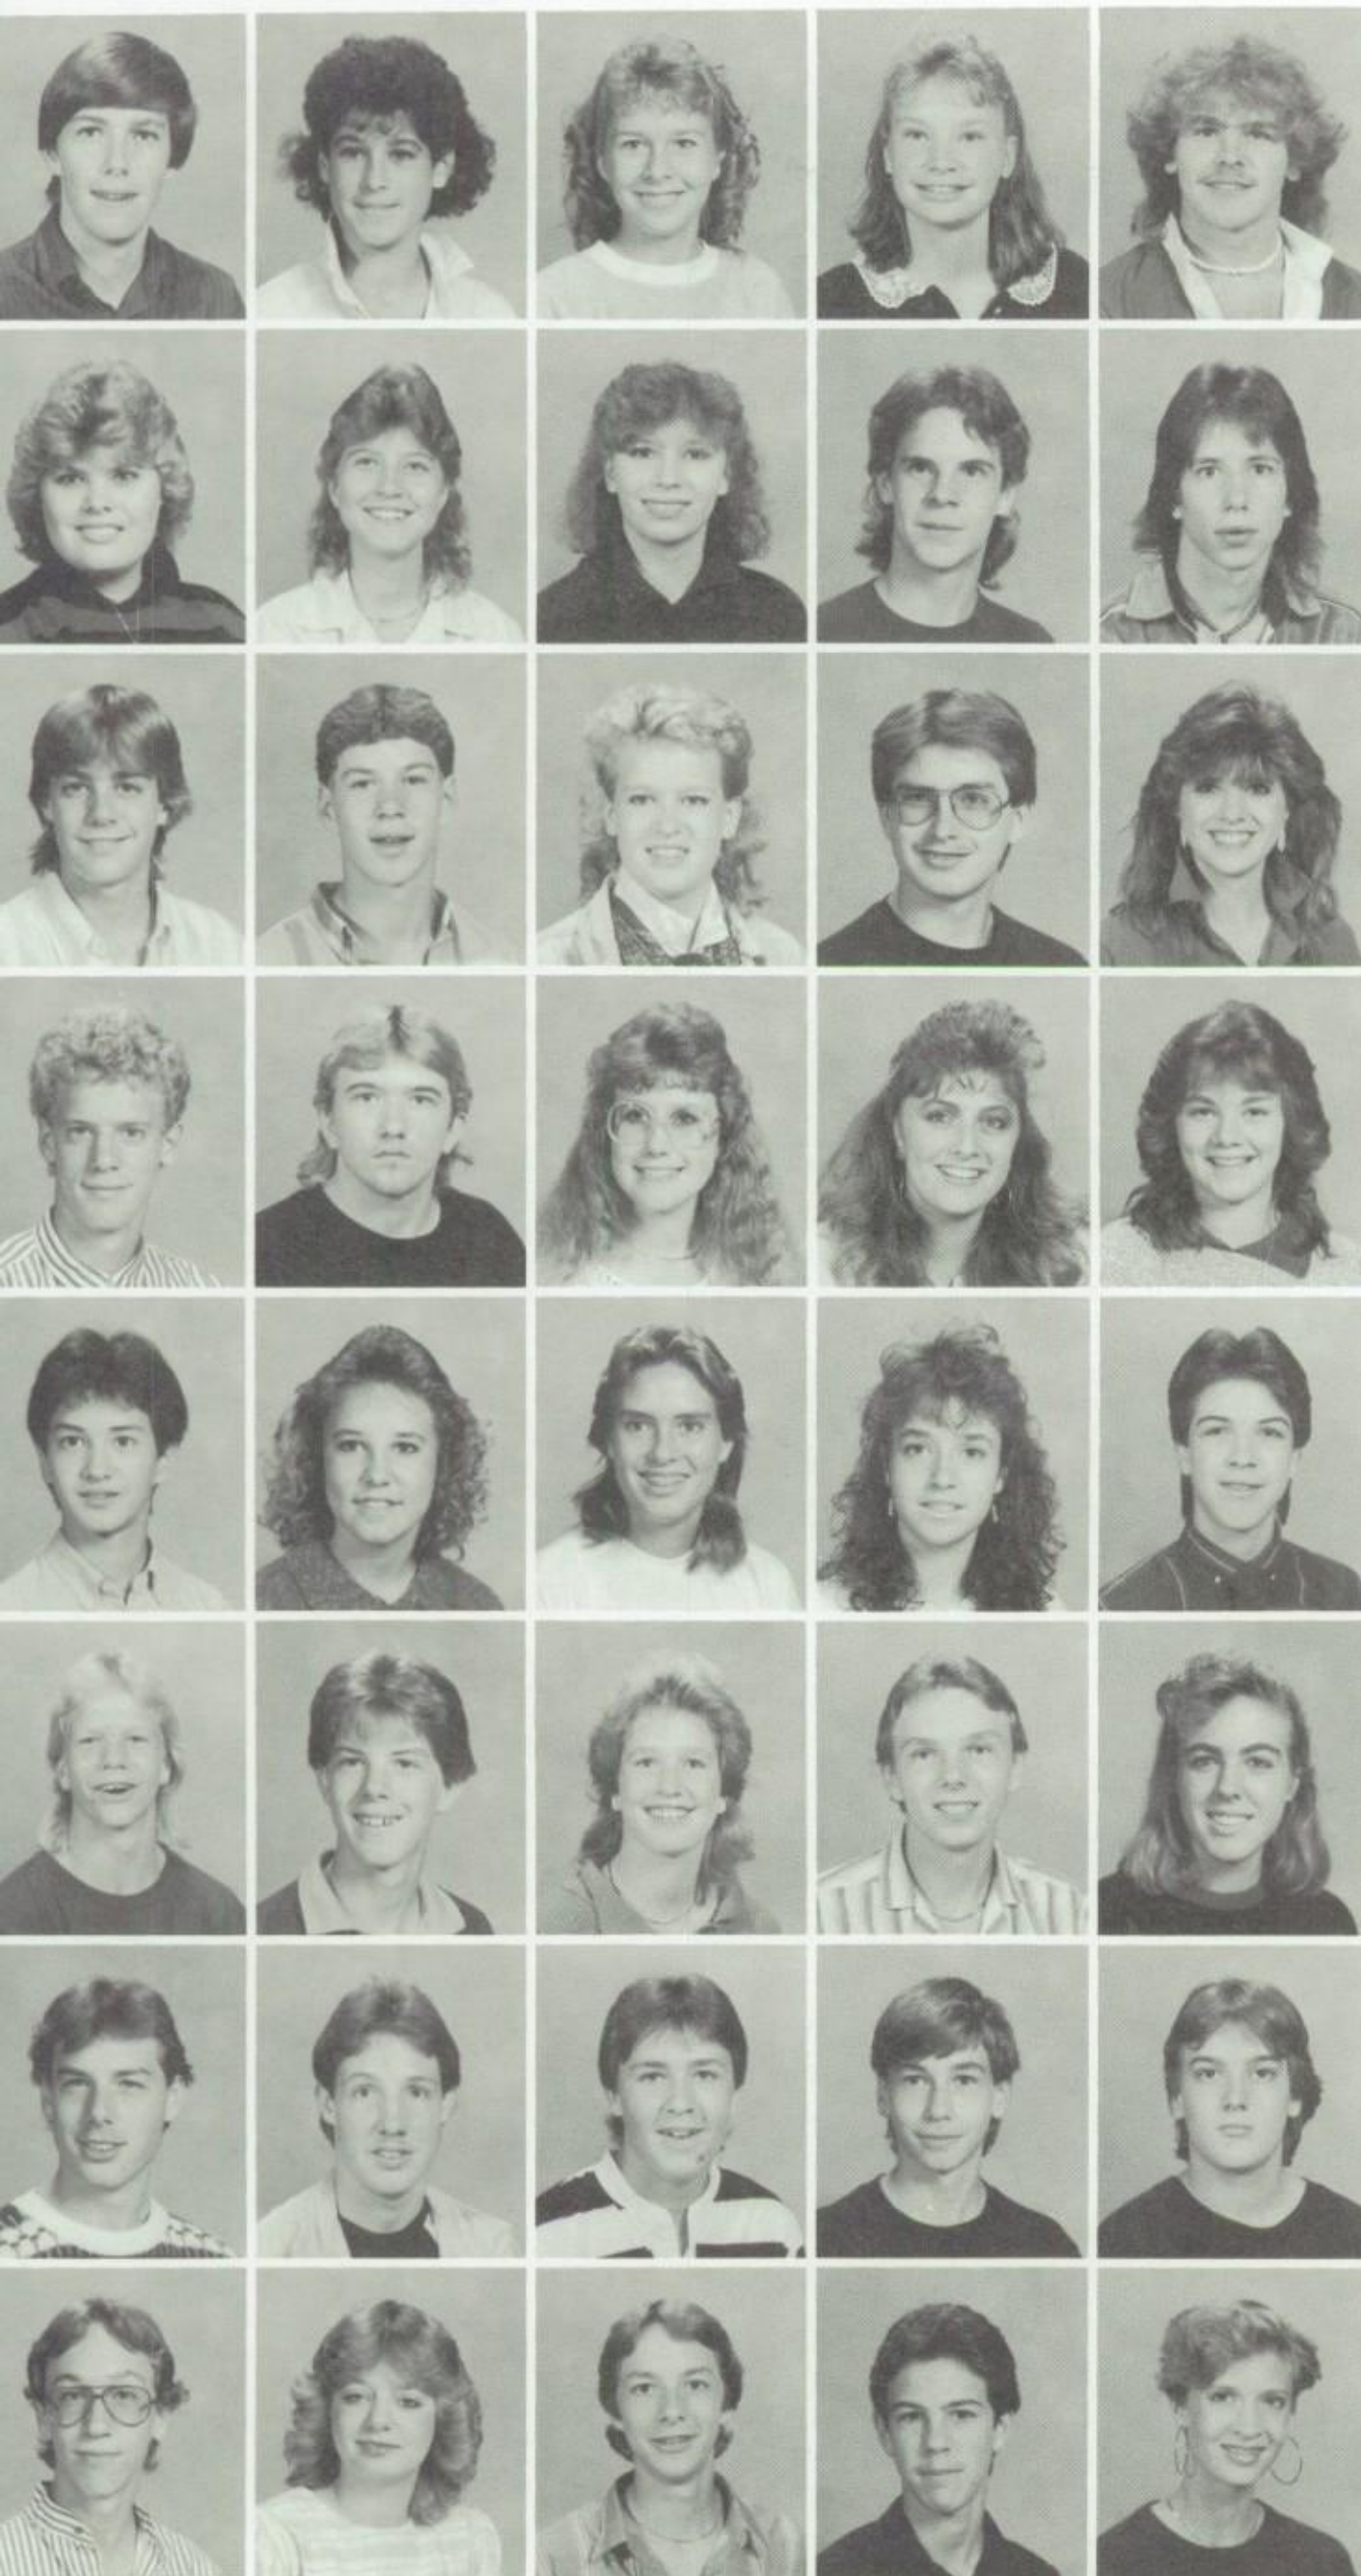

Sheri Boisot, Lisa Vaughn, Mike Saltz and Kirsten Clark look eagerly through the sand for shells.

The Freshman Class

The Freshman Class went through a big change as they experienced their first year of high school. They were new. They were rookies and being so, they were picked on in the halls, classrooms and lunch lines. In the end, when they adjusted and found their routes, the class of 1991 no longer felt like outsiders. They felt they had filled the gap that made North Stafford complete.

This year's Freshman Class officers were Julie Fenner — President; Jill Bowling — Vice President; Amelia Armedariz — Treasurer; Jacie Raines — Secretary; Terry Frank — Reporter; and Mrs. Parker — Sponsor.

Amelia Armedariz, Jill Bowling, Julie Fenner, Jacie Raines, and Terry Frank are this year's Freshman Class officers.

At lunch, Amelia Armedariz, Jenny Heath, and Natalie Grabill are trying to keep their conversations alive in between bites.

Parlez-vous anglais?

Licia Hobbs, Christiana Holtz, Carol Siner, Rhonda Wilson, and Robin Duncan look for a word in the French-English dictionary.

Parlez-vous francais?, or do you speak English; well some of us enjoy taking different languages. It is hard enough to understand different accents of our own language, can you imagine understanding accents from another language? Some languages taken at North Stafford were: Latin, Spanish, German, and French. These were a few ways to say "Hello" in other languages:

Spanish.....	Hola
French.....	Bonjour
German.....	Gutentag
Latin.....	Salve

Making Money Last . . .

Tom Shull, Alex Darrough, Steve Raymond, Christiana Holtz, and Greg McCoy talk about what they are doing tonight and how they are going to get their money.

"Do you want to do something tonight."

"I can't, I have no money."

"Well, let's borrow some!"

Some students got allowances from their parents while others worked and spent their own money. The question at North Stafford was, when you got money "how did you make your money last?" Shelly Smith said, "I shop around," and Laura Stapleton agreed by spending "as little as possible until I find a sale." Sherri Boisot expressed her opinion by saying, "allowances went out with bell bottoms. I either beg for money or babysit!"

School Trivia

The ladies in the cafeteria laughed frantically at the number of trays, pots and pans. Do you have any idea how many trays there really are?

Did you know or did you have any idea that North Stafford was so big? Test Yourself! In the 1987-88 school year North Stafford High School seemed to barely accommodate its 1930 students. Through the year one might have thought the school was over crowded, but with 1,996 lockers in the school there was just enough room for everyone. Although it seemed there was never quite enough room in the hallways and locker rooms, there was always plenty of bathrooms. Believe it or not there were over 85 toilets and 150 sinks. When you walked through the same halls for years it was difficult not to realize the obvious; like the 174 steps, 100 trash cans, and more than 20 water fountains. However, have you ever stopped to consider the many trivial things right on this campus; such as: the 9 athletic fields, 8 tennis courts, a stadium seating 4,000 persons and many other fabulous facilities. It was still hard to believe all of these things could have been found in the 293,000 square feet building on this 90 acre campus. Isn't trivia so trivial!

Attention all you mathematicians out there! Do you love math? If you think you know all there is to know about math, Here's a little trivia for you.

1. Who invented the logarithm?
2. When was the earliest law defining length made? What was it?
3. From what is the word arithmetic derived?
4. Who is called the father of trigonometry?
5. Who invented the adding machine? When?
6. What was inscribed on the sign that Plato had over his door?

1. John Napier
2. 1324, "Three barley corns, rounded dry, placed end to end, make an inch"
3. Greek word meaning "the art of counting"
4. Hipparchus, Greek astronomer.
5. Pascal, in 1642, at age of nineteen.

Art Test . . .

s. Douglas, Michelle Meads, and Lynette Hoffman demonstrate an art project that will eventually lead to a practical exam.

How coordinated are you? An Art test can answer that question very easily. If your hand can record on paper what your eyes see, without your eyes ever looking at the paper, you have excellent eye hand coordination. These were trivia questions made up by advanced art students:

1. What famous American female artist had an exhibit at the National Art Gallery during the 1987-1988 school year?

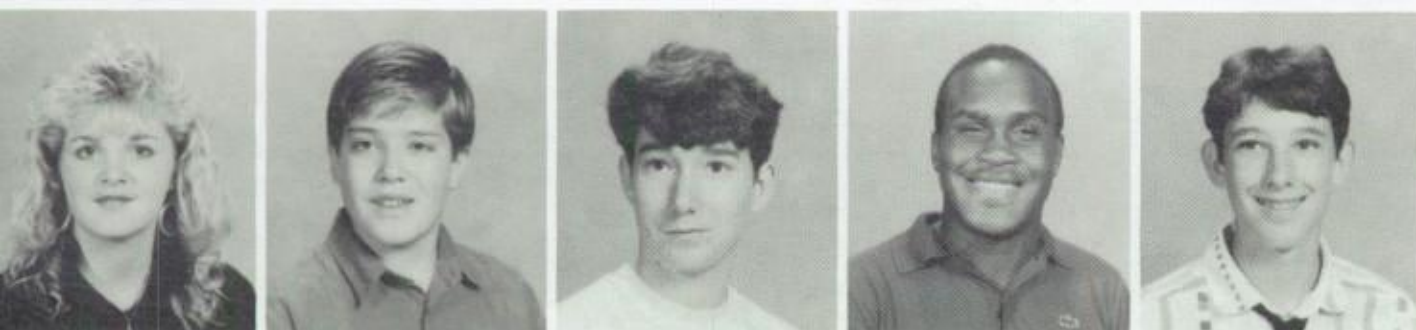

2. What is the family name of three generations of 20th century American male artists?

3. Name the artist who is most famous for creating cartoon characters?

4. Who was a famous artist who died in 1987, known for drawing soup cans?

5. Who was the artist who painted melting clocks?

2. Wyeth
3. Walt Disney
4. Andy Warhol

Unser Deutscher Freund!

Thomas Lerbs, a seventeen year old from West Berlin, attends Al-gled Wegeled High School. He's taken five years of English and is interested in going into the computer field. Thomas enjoys the friends he has made in the U.S. "They are so friendly and so interested in my life in West Berlin. They like to hear everything about me. It is pretty nice to feel so important to others." Thomas wanted to give his family a message, "I will cherish the memories which I've spent with you all this year! Thank you so much for everything."

Thomas begins to grin at the thought of eating ice cream, his favorite American food.

High on Homeroom!

"Gosh, I hate going to homeroom."

"I just think it is a waste of time and stupid." "I like homeroom because it gives me a chance to settle down and get things together before the day begins." "I guess you are right, homeroom isn't so bad."

How else would you start the day without homeroom? Not only does homeroom let you relax, but you hear important announcements too. For example: the final score of last night's exciting game, details on the assembly during sixth period, or just a reminder that there is an important meeting after school. School just would not be the same without a homeroom start.

Shawn Hendrickson tries to catch up on his last minute studying before the day begins.

Big Bad Box Bonanza!

The Big Bad Box Bonanza was basically a test of five different skills — design, layout, camerawork, image-assembly, and the ability to run a press. The project involved designing and eventually printing any type of container which served a useful purpose. Students made a prototype of their container and then drew the plans for it. One could either use a fictitious product name and box design or use a real product and copy the design. After all the containers had been completed they were judged by faculty members, on the basis of creativity, printing quality, and final assembly. The winner of this contest received a giant chocolate chip cookie, with a first place ribbon.

Terrill Allen, Shawn Walters, Scott Edens, Jimmy Woolen, and Ben Johnson watch Mr. Vaughn as he demonstrates how to use the printing machine.

The sports program in our high school allowed the students to participate in before and after school activities, practice sportsmanship, and have a good time. There was a wide range of sports offered to both boys and girls. They had to only meet the requirements of having an up-to-date physical and pass five subjects per-semester. Each athlete was expected to perform to the best of his or her ability, no matter what sport in which they played. They learned to accept defeat as well as victory, thus building good character. We had so many good teams backed by so many supporters, that there was STANDING ROOM ONLY!!

Cheerleading was a year-round sport with the season starting in June and practices for camp. This summer the squad traveled to the University of Richmond for four days where they attended a NCA camp. There they endured hours of intense practicing and moments of stiff competition amidst the sweltering July heat. "It was nice to know we had an air conditioned dorm to go back to," laughed Stephanie Hornung. While at camp, the squad became a finalist for The Award of Excellence. The Varsity Cheerleaders managed to successfully support the Football and Basketball Teams through their seasons, as well as all the other sports teams.

The girls then prepared for Football season and moved directly into Basketball season. The squad worked hard and long all season and looked forward to working just as hard next year. Junior Angela Firkins expressed, "The 1987-88 sport seasons were great, which means next year can only be better!" With all that the squad learned this year, the girls will have a lot to build on for the coming year.

While attending camp, the Wolverettes won numerous awards, including: the Shining Star Award for spirit and team unity; a Home Routine Trophy, for superior ratings on their jazz routine, "Leggs"; and the Sweepstakes trophy. Several individuals also won awards: Christi Kirby, Sarah Kladder, and Erin McCool were chosen as SUPERSTAR girls. Mrs. Parish claimed, "I couldn't ask for anything more! nior Varsity and one for the Varsity Squad. Other awards won included The Home Routine Award and The Shining Star Award. Through their hard work and numerous activities they formed a close family relationship. Mrs. Parish exclaimed "They have reached beyond their goals and I'm proud of each and every one of them!"

Junior Varsity Field Hockey.

The North Stafford Junior Varsity Field Hockey team improved greatly throughout the season. Their practice began in the summer with different camps which lead into the workouts. The team consisted of new-comers and inexperienced players but they quickly learned what the word "team" was all about. They came together, overcame their inexperience and helped each other learn from their mistakes. There were many people lost due to injuries but the team morale was kept high by Jennifer Fancher. Jennifer was lost early in the season due to a knee injury; but she stayed with the team on the sidelines and shouted advice and encouragement. In the end everyone found their position and place on the team, which contributed to a successful season. The Junior varsity field hockey thanked their Coach, Mrs. Mahely, "Even though you were expecting, you continued your effort as an excellent coach!"

The North Stafford Varsity Field Hockey team had another outstanding year. Although the team lost 10 key players because of the 1987 graduation, that didn't stop the mighty lady Wolverines! They won plenty of recognition. With their captains, Sheri Braxton and Melissa Schelin, the team won the district title, the Fredericksburg Field Hockey Tournament and placed second in the region. Melissa explains, "Because the team is very close we play as a team and that is how we got to Regionals!" This year was something to be proud of.

for Varsity Football.

The North Stafford Football Program took a step toward rebuilding its program this year. The Varsity Team was coached by John Iannucci, James Kostel, Joe Smith, and Mike Covington. The offence continually moved the ball on everybody. This was evident in the thrilling 28-20 loss to the eventual State Champions Courtland. Sean Johnson said "We all just got out there and played tough and we didn't let them intimidate us." Seniors Sean Johnson and Ralph Rice along with Juniors Geoff Hannon, Chris Donnelly, Gary Baker, Shane Caver, Willie Johnson, Gary LaFleur and Sophomores Todd Vaughn and Tim Lynch lead a stubborn defense which was constantly out-sized. The special teams were highlighted by the returns of LaFleur as well as the kicking of Sean Johnson. The renewed enthusiasm and optimism as well as the returning of many key players left 1987 as a sound foundation to build on.

1987 proved to be more than a challenge to this season's Junior Varsity Football Program.

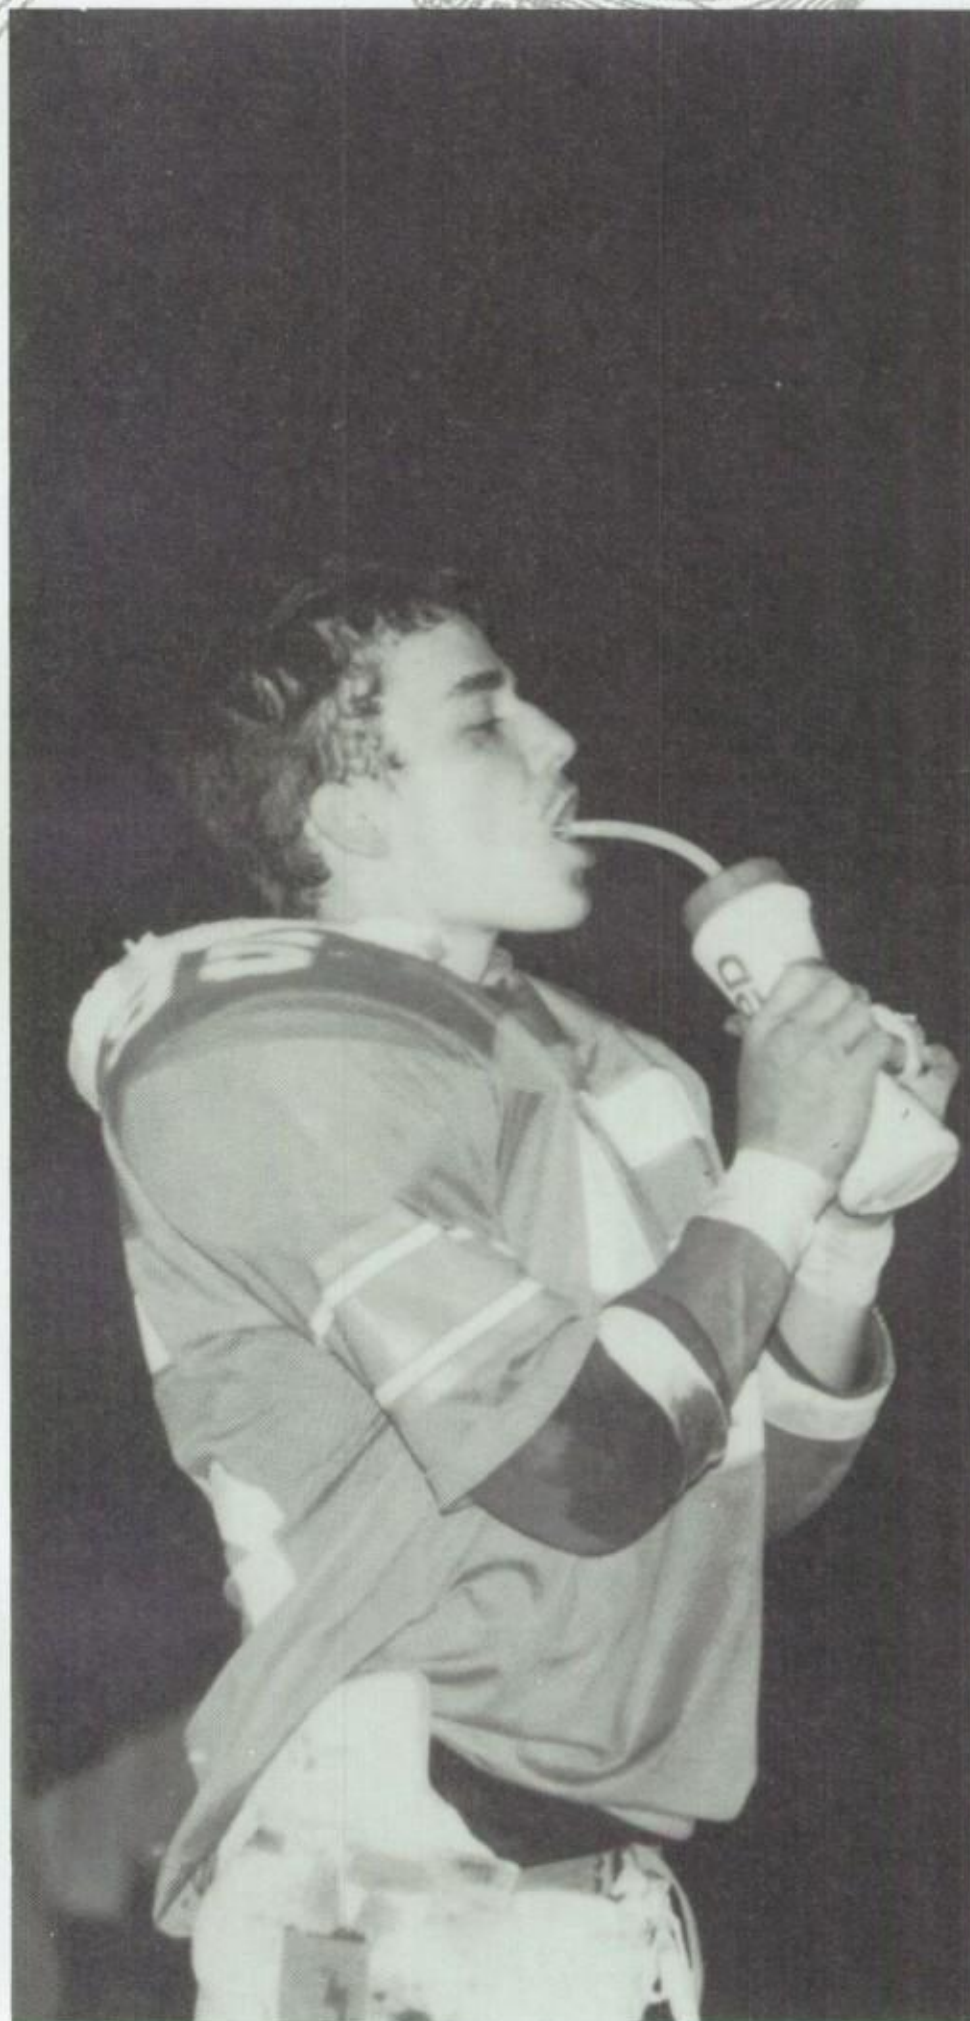

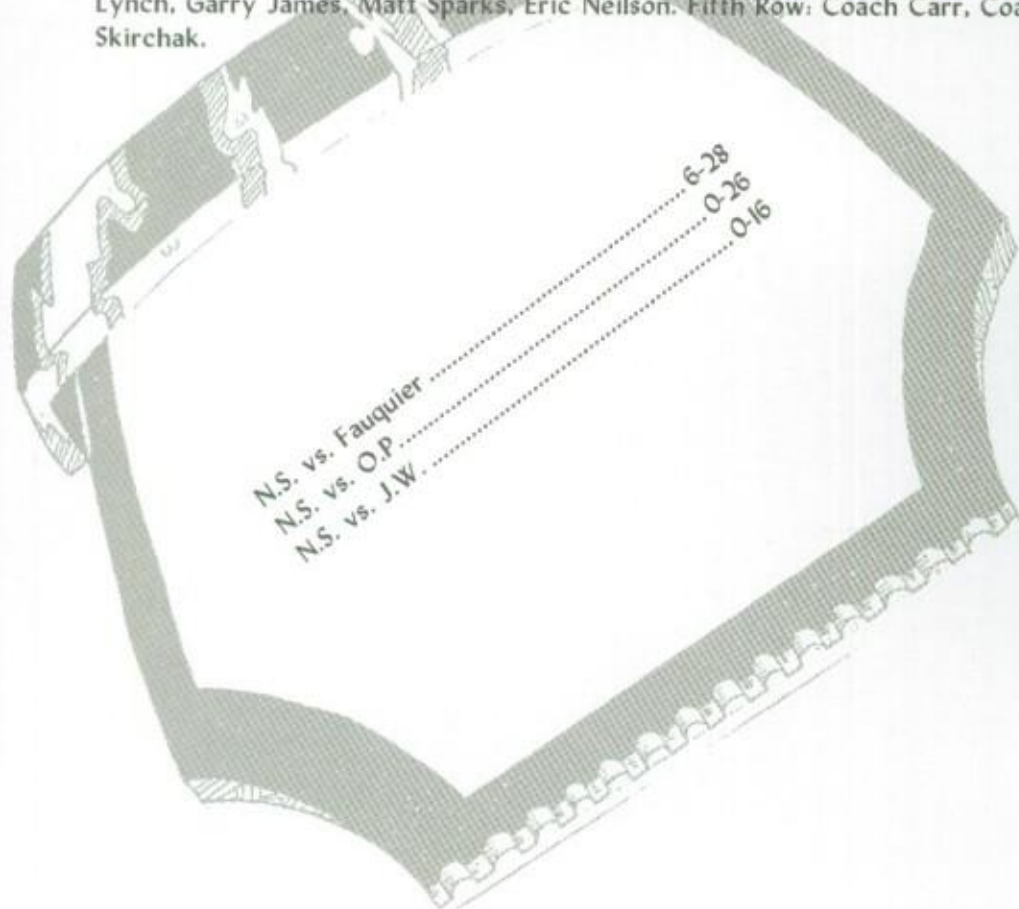

This year's team was coached by Tom Carr and Mike Skirchak. Due to a number of injuries, the team was at a slight disadvantage. Eric Neilsen said, "It was tough having to sit back and watch."

Although this team was plagued by numerous injuries and a lack of full participation, the J.V. members played with intensity throughout the season and never seemed to give up. Standouts on this year's squad were Andy Valente, Matt Sparks, Chuck Newton, and Gary James.

This year was long and hard, but through it all of the Junior Varsity players never lost their spirit.

The Freshman Football team proudly finished their season with a 4-3-1 record. Some of the team highlights included defeating Stafford and winning four games in a row. No matter what the outcome, the team managed to keep a positive attitude. Coach Mills said this was because of "the closeness and family attitude of the players." Some of the outstanding players included Dwayne Roy, David Cline, Dwane Dunmire, and Roger Starkey.

Again the 1987-88 Girls Cross-Country Team had an outstanding season. The team went undefeated in dual and tri-meets, having a perfect score (15-47) against Potomac. The team placed a close second in the Woodberry Forest Invitational, and 3rd in the Albemarle Invitational. The team was third in district, fourth in regional, and ninth at state. Returning from last year were senior Debi Bridges, junior Laura Seiffert and sophomores Debbie Beiland, also Debbie Turner. New faces were Cheryl Smith, Michelle Cockle, Jennifer Freeburn, and Jeanette Ponnwitz. The NSHS course record was reset once again by Laura Seiffert, with a time of 19:13. Laura received all-District and all-Regional honors. Freshman Jennifer Freeburn set a Freshman course record on the home course and received all-District honors. The team had a very successful season and senior Debi Bridges will be missed next year.

realized they had to work to keep the "winning tradition." Freshman Brian Bell surprised everyone by being a top Varsity contender. Seniors Matt Hough and Mike Ramey will be missed. The team looks forward to an even stronger season next year.

The tennis team's major accomplishment was a winning season for the first time in two years. After losing a game they talked about their mistakes and tried to make sure they wouldn't make the same ones again. But, winning was different. There was lots of screaming and yelling, especially for the first win of their season. When asked about the team's spirit senior Stacey Burns remarked, "At first negative, but Coach Blackburn really psyched us up before matches and made us feel like we could win every-time if we put our minds to it." Everyone contributed to the wins, but six of the top players were: Christiane Holtz, Shelly Meares, Jenny DeBlasi, Michelle Liedel, Chuku Vashee, and Whitney Whirman.

This year's girls varsity team did not win every game, but they worked very hard. The big highlight of the year was beating Stafford at home. A major accomplishment was when Rachel Hemmer broke the "most rebounds in a game" record against Stafford with twenty-three rebounds. When the team won they knew they deserved the win and they had really earned it. When asked about this year's team spirit, Christine Hudson remarked, "Throughout the season the team really tried hard to play as one unit. This year's Girl's Junior Varsity Basketball team had the best season ever at North Stafford! Their saying was, of course, "We can do it!" When they would lose a game they would work harder and support each other. There were many team heroes; Ally Hornung and Katy Jackson got the key rebounds, Kari Rothe and Carrie Haase were great on the fast break. Shantell Hawkins would always make a needed steal and Bandi Welsh would make a needed shot. When Bandi was asked how she felt about this years team spirit she remarked, "our team spirit was excellent, we always supported each other and were a good working unit."

cey, senior Eric Menke, and junior Willie Johnson. But the whole team counted, they all worked together to play their hardest, no matter what the cost.

Since only four out of the twelve players were seniors, next year's team should be very exciting.

This year's Junior Varsity Basketball team overcame many difficulties. They started the season with a new coach and all new techniques. Even though the season was rough, the guys kept up their spirit and with this spirit they won against Potomac. Not only were the guys psyched, but the fans went crazy. Some of this year's star players were point guard, Chad Menke, and Timothy Lynch pulling up the defense. According to Coach Mills, the Junior Varsity team "improving and developing into the framework of Coach Trant's system." These player's are sure to be ready for next year.

Boy's Freshman Basketball.

This year's Freshman Basketball team weathered a great deal of difficulty this year. No matter how hard the season was, the team tried their hardest and that was what really counted. Even though they lost games, the boy's Freshman Basketball team gave it their best.

Varsity Wrestling!

This year's Varsity Wrestling team had a very up and down season because of the number of new wrestlers who were in their initial learning season.

Jack King showed talent on the mat by successful maneuvering of his opponents. Coaches were Tom Carr and John Hubert. Practices consisted of running, tumbling, and conditioning. "This season was one of the best we've had," stated Scott Carmine. Other valuable wrestlers were: Randy Duval, Keith Johnson, Scott Carmine, and John Craig. The leadership of the seniors will be missed but the team looks forward to next year's season. Because of the youth in this year's team there will be many returning members.

This year's gymnastics headed by coach Payne and assistant coach Patton, was full of life! Stephanie Hornung said, "Our team was very spirited and the fact that we have so much depth on the team it self inspires a sense of drive in everyone." Some team highlights during the season were breaking the school team record at least four times and winning the Lake Braddock Invitational Meet, in which they beat the district champion contender, Courtland. Even after losing a meet, the team stuck together by their slogan "Be Jolly".

Girls Winter Track.

The girl's winter track team had a very successful season. They participated in many invitationals. In the Trojan Relays many of the girls placed for finals. Some outstanding athletes were Alexis Clarke, Yvette Harrison, Laura Seiffert and Sherri Braxton. "After a four year removal from the schedule we were glad to get to travel and participate with the other schools in the district," stated Coach Harris.

The Marching Band.

The Marching Band, along with the Band Front, won a great number of awards this year. They were awarded many first and second place trophies at various competitions all over the state, and were Grand Champions at the Franklin County Annual Band Day competition. Practicing three days a week for three hours a day and spending most Saturdays at competitions hardly left anytime for social activities. "It was all worth it in the end, because when you won it really felt great," remarked Senior Nicole Brown.

Jazz Band!

The Jazz Band at North Stafford was a select group of 20 members who took a special class during school to play music. They played at the openings of various businesses around the area, as well as playing at several competitions. Some of the Jazz Bands selections consisted of "Hang on Sloppy", and "Material Girl".

Row nine: Frank Cates.

This year's Concert Band had a very successful year. They sent 30 members of the band to the All Regional Band held on the fifth through the seventh of February at Courtland High School. Unlike the Marching Band, they usually only practiced two days a week. They performed at various events, such as the Christmas Concert, the Spring Concert, and Graduation in June. All of their performances were excellent. Some of their selections consisted of "Mannin Veen", "Barber of Seville", and "The Nat'l Emblem".

Having trouble finding yourself? Trying to find that special guy or girl you've been admiring all year? Is searching page by page a hassle when you want to find someone fast? Well, this handy index has come to your rescue. The index is here to help you find whoever you are looking for, whether friends, foes, or lovers. It's simple! It's quick and easy! Just look up the last name of the person you are searching for and all the pages their face is on will be listed after their name. So, start hunting!

FAVORITE ENTERTAINMENT!

Every now and then, after an award show was on T.V., students sometimes were heard asking questions like, "Why did they pick that band?" or "Where did that movie come from?" That is why this year we conducted our own poll, to find out what you the students, liked. Many strange and interesting answers came in. They ranged from favorite band — NSHS, China White, favorite actress, Minnie Mouse. Listed are the top five winners of each category. They were definitely not what we expected.

CHRISTMAS SING-ALONG

Remember the assembly when all of the teachers sang Christmas carols and Coach Blackburn directed the orchestra? Well, that assembly brought the Christmas joy out in everyone. People were saying "tis the season to be jolly" for days after that. After a while of listening to the faculty singing Christmas carols, the students joined in and everyone left that day with high spirits. Most assemblies or pep rallies were traditional throughout the year, but this special one changed a great many minds.

CHRISTMAS REINDEER!

The Materials and Processes Technology Students involved in making one-hundred wooden reindeer for Christmas this year. The profits went into supplies for other projects. Two class sessions were devoted to short practice runs on each part. Procedures were worked out and approved by the production manager and inspectors. After the "bugs" were worked out, production began. Each of the four classes served as four different work shifts. It took twelve forty-minute periods to complete one-hundred and five deer. Only ninety of them passed inspection.

As production took place, sales people planned advertisement schemes while determining for all ninety reindeer, a fair sale price. By Thanksgiving, all ninety reindeer were sold.

AUTO BODY AND AUTO MECHANICS CELEBRATE!

This year's Vica Automotive Clubs combined efforts on many projects. In many cases the same vehicles found their way to both classes. After a successful semester of repairs and replacements both clubs combined to feast on success.

ENGLISH ASSISTANCE!

North Stafford was visited for the second time by two English gentlemen. Melia Gerrard and Derik Brown were here to teach students to write with more creativity. They were really cool and taught us how to put things in perspective," replied Bruce Omeyne. The first time they visited, teachers found them quite effective with the students. Mr. Gerrard commented, "Schools in America are more structured and teachers don't seem to have the same flexibility in terms of curriculum as they do in England." Before returning to England, Mr. Gerrard and Derik Brown remarked, "We had a wonderful time and we love the teachers." All of our students enjoyed having them and hope to see them again.

BUSINESS AS USUAL

"You started panicking. If you got off some row there were just a bunch of letters and it didn't spell out anything. You got so sick of correction tape that you wanted to turn it. But I could type my research papers and I didn't have to ask anyone else to do it. I didn't have to sit there for two hours with two finger typing. I typed everything then. When you typed your papers you could see what you'd written and correct it. If you sent it out, you paid a lot. It's fun and I liked my teacher." These were a few of the feelings expressed by Allison Glace.

Standing Through The Year . . .

The Time To Say Goodbye!

Shannon Maurice is ready to leave right after the last class has been dismissed.

The time came when we had to say goodbye . . . For some, the farewell extended only for the summer, but for the seniors, it was a goodbye that was "permanent."

The goodbyes for the freshmen were pleasant ones because they were goodbyes that lasted only over the summer, the ending of being the lowest classmen, and knowing that in the fall there would be new freshmen to be harrassed. As Krystal Jones explained, "Saying goodbye meant I'd be leaving a whole bunch of friends for the summer but would soon be coming back for an even better year as a Sophomore!"

The sophomores had similar feelings about having to say goodbye. Many were relieved to say goodbye to those days when they could not drive. Although there were some nice things to say goodbye to, it was still not an easy thing to do. Jed Stapleton felt that saying goodbye meant "I'd move up to the upperclass." Jed also sees another less cheerful side of his becoming an upperclassmen, which was saying goodbye to the seniors, "I guess I'll miss my senior friends, but I'll make new senior friends next year."

The class that was most excited about saying goodbye was the junior class. The juniors had been through three years of school and were finally ready to be at the top as seniors. Even though Billy Cimino gladly said "goodbye to junior life," he said that "next year as a senior I'll have an even harder time of saying goodbye."

After four years of high school, many seniors were ready to get out of school and go on with their lives, but there were also many who were not ready to say goodbye to their daily routines. The thrill of finally being on their own played heavily on many seniors' minds, but the feeling of loss at having to say goodbye to friends meant tears for many seniors. Mike Rawlings points out, "most of the senior class was like my family because I have grown up with them and it was hard to say goodbye, but I am counting on us keeping in touch!"

e band marches off the field ready to go home
er the last football game of the season.

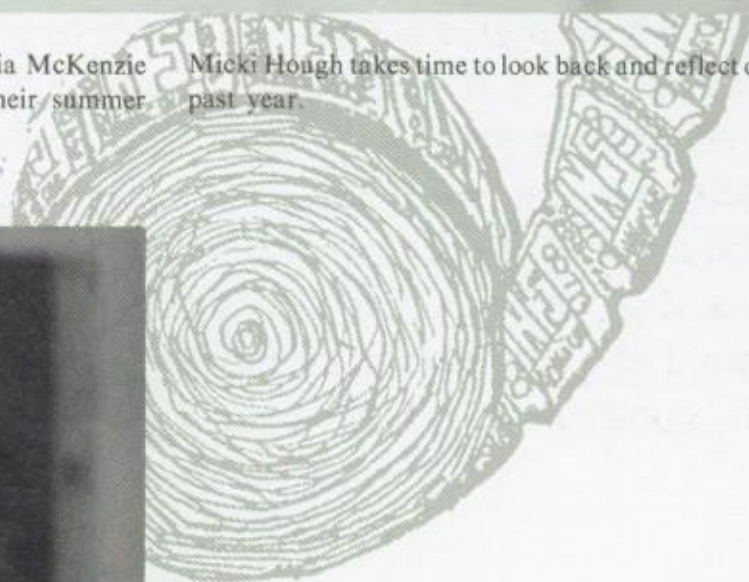

Mike Lion, Thomas Whitlow, and Marcia McKenzie seem to be happy when thinking of their summer plans.

Micki Hough takes time to look back and reflect on the past year.

April Stafford and Beth Cloe say their last goodbyes.

Each of us — no matter where or in what year — had to learn to say goodbye to some of the best days and times of our lives. Sheena Easton sang “It’s hard to say it’s over, it’s hard to say goodbye,” but with each goodbye we have gained not only memories, but experience, knowledge, and long-standing friendships!

Felcia Hobbs, Billy Cimino, Sharyon Vanover, and Sandi Turner say goodbye to Thomas Lerbs on his last day of school at North Stafford before he went home to Germany.

Greg:

Hey Sport! Well we've shared interesting times, all the way from punching each other in the hall + lunch to our memorable date to see a scary flick. I told you what I do when I'm scared and you still persisted. Ya' Wang! Well - no matter how far apart we grow or how many crackers you mush in my pocket(!) you'll still be one of my bestest buddies. I still think you should've gotten CLASS FLIRT but - who the hell knows. Keep doing what guys do best - use them abuse them then throw them away! Remember soccer players suck! (HA) Never lose touch w/ me Greg Jackson or I'll have to slam you HARD. And I will. Let's get  this summer (Hee Hee)

(HI?)

Love you -

And Greg, an entire page all to myself. How lucky for me! Well Gregg, where do I begin? We've known each other quite a long time haven't we? We've had a bunch of classes together - 11th grade English and Chemistry with your favorite man and mine
Mr. Hontz. We all know he invented his own elementary never hated any class so much in my life! You were the only "normal" person in that whole place! Remember how we hated Nancy Stanton... she always knew the right answer!
Well, you know I've been lusty over you for the past 2 years! It's no secret! I had a really erotic dream about you the other night... it was well, interesting to say the least. Alright, see, you were swimming in this huge pool full of cheerios (naked of course!) and I was sitting in the chair lifeguarding. Then you got tired - and started going under. You grasped desperately for a cheerio but they kept sinking! I jumped onto the milk to save you and... we both drowned. Pretty exciting, huh? ☺ Seriously Greg, I've enjoyed watching you run around on that soccer field this spring - it was a breathtaking sight! I have faith that you'll do a stupendous job in college. I'm really going to miss my little Donzo in college next year though! Who's going to talk dirty to me?! I know that everyone says hup in touch, but I mean it! Please call me before you leave in the fall and we'll exchange addresses! I mean it Greg, I want us to write to each other! I know we'll see each other this summer and at the beach too... we'll have a good time, hopefully! Please come by and visit me at the pool this summer - I hate it there and just seeing your cute little face will brighten my day. Adios For now you little little!

Love to you Always - Dana Nielsen

(sucked!)

Greg,

I don't know what I would have done had I not met you. Human Physiology would not have been the same! Thanks for helping me with the Anatomy part of it!! Well, you still have to help me with this Chapter (male reproductive system) - well, on a purely professional basis! Too bad you didn't have time to scrimmage with me, but one day you'll see me on the Olympics - or the White House - whatever comes first! You still are by far one of the most gorgeous guys I have ever lust after, and you still, ~~you still~~, owe me a date! I can't wait till the beach!! I love you! Keep in touch next year!

Love,

Shani

I'm so sure!

You have ugly feet - but that's O.K. You may still make it in life.

I had a great time this year - you made some parts of it very special. I know a lot that was unsaid many not have been a good idea to keep that way, I apologize.

You are a great person to be with. Being with you is time well spent. We have to go water skiing this year - when our boat goes in.

Please keep in touch -

Love Laura

- Keep wearing tank tops!!
